LBJ, Aides Head For Guam

Says U.S. To Pursue The 'Painful Course'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just before taking off Saturday night for his Guam strategy conference on Vietnam, President Johnson spoke of the "painful course" America must pursue in the Southeast Asian conflict.

"It is a painful course that we pursue to keep hope alive in that land where our commitment is tested," Johnson said.

"But pursue it we must," he added.

Johnson made these brief remarks about the war in a toast at a black-tie dinner for the nation's governors following a day-long conference with them on federal-state relations.

At 11:30 p.m. EST, the big presidential jetliner was set for takeoff on the 19-hour, 8,000-mile flight to Guam.

Johnson will spend two days on the tiny U.S. island in the western Pacific conferring with U.S. and South Vietnamese leaders. The main focus, administration officials said, would be on "the other war" — the effort to build a strong and democratic civilian society in South Vietnam that can withstand Red subversion.

During the White House session with governors from 49 states and territories, Johnson avoided any showdown with Republican governors over Vietnam policy.

Michigan Gov. George W. Romney, a potential GOP presidential candidate next year, acknowledged that the Republican governors had a counter-

Pekin Wins State Prep Cage Title

CHAMPAIGN—Pekin's Chino wrapped up their second Illinois State high school basketball championship in the past four years here Saturday night by dumping Carbondale's weary Terriers by 75-59.

Pekin, which won the title in 1964, topped Springfield in the semi-final round Saturday afternoon to gain a shot at the championship.

Springfield placed third in tournament by downing Rockford West in the consolation game.

Congress Not Buying Economy Boom Idea

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sluggishness in the economy is no longer a projection or a theory but a reality borne out fully by the government's own statistics.

This was predicted by President Johnson's economic advisers two months ago but their next prediction — an upturn later in the year — has run into some cold stares from Congress.

And recent events including a decline in three important economic thermometers certainly didn't help the administration's case for its proposed 6 per cent surtax to take effect July 1.

The surtax request is based on the projection of an economic upturn during the second half of 1967.

The government reported in the past week the second substantial drop in industrial output in as many months and a 2 per cent decline in retail sales during February. It also disclosed a 15.1 per cent decline in housing starts for the same month, disrupting the substantial gains of the three previous months.

The accelerated economic pace predicted for the second half of the year was described by the Senate-Economic Committee as an uncertain basis for policy. But it urged Congress to remain flexible on the tax question.

Some members of the House Ways and Means Committee expressed doubt about the administration's economic projections but Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler stood by them.

The committee and later the House approved reinstatement of the 7 per cent investment tax credit requested only nine days ago by the President and the Senate set hearings this week.

Officials denied, however, any attempt to pump-prime the economy despite the request to restore the tax credit and the administration's announced plans to pour more than a billion dollars into the economy.

The economy, they said, is now able to absorb the spending deferred as an anti-inflationary move last fall but some officials conceded it would have a mild stimulus on the economy.

GUAM PREPS FOR VIPs

AGANA, Guam (AP) — An Army captain's wife packed a suitcase, dusted off a dresser top and moved in with neighbors. Soldiers, sailors and Marines were armed with paint brushes. And at U.S. naval headquarters on Guam "off limits" signs went up for all but a few selected personnel.

This was the scene on this 30-by-4-mile U.S. island in the Pacific Saturday as it prepared for the first visit of an American president. Yet only one sign was up and there were no decorative arches and bunting to welcome President Johnson Monday morning.

Officials here said this was not due to a lack of respect for the President but more likely a lack of experience in welcoming VIPs. They expected large turnouts, Monday, and Tuesday, when the President leaves.

The lone sign was put up by the Department of Public Works and it read: "Welcome to Guam, President and Mrs. Johnson."

It went up that way before it was announced in Washington that Mrs. Johnson would not make the trip.

They will be at the President's side in the discussions of the military war and "the other war" in Guam.

The spotlight is expected to focus too on the new shifts in the U.S. civilian command at Saigon and stepping up the non-military effort. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and his deputy, William Porter, are being replaced by Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Eugene Locke.

The officials told newsmen they do not expect any major military decisions will be made or announced at the two-day meeting on the tiny island in the western Pacific.

Johnson's trip was listed as the first visit by an American president to Guam while in office. Dwight D. Eisenhower stopped there on his Korean journey as president-elect in 1952.

Since Johnson was due back late Tuesday, U.S. time, his travel schedule gave him about the same amount of time in the air as the two days and one night he will have on the ground at Guam. He was flying to the small U.S. Pacific position via a refueling stop at Honolulu or Anchorage.

South Vietnam's minister of revolutionary development, Maj. Gen. Nguyen Duc Thang, told a news conference here before he too flew off to the Guam meeting that the pacification program is making progress now and more lies ahead.

Disputing assertions that the rural development program aimed at winning the people away from communism is proceeding too slowly, Thang said the effort must have a solid foundation and "no one can press us to do something just for statistics and publicity."

He said that this "new life" hamlet program for the countryside is necessary for victory over the Reds and the way it is progressing now "maybe three or four years from now we can see the end of the war."

Congress has raised the debt limit to $336 billion and authorized spending an additional $4.5 billion in Vietnam, and the Senate has approved the historic Soviet-U.S. consular treaty. But most of the President's major proposals are buried in legislative committees.

Hearings on the alleged wrongdoing of two Democrats, Rep. Adam Clayton Powell of New York and Sen. Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut, have provided the biggest congressional news of the past three months.

NFO MEMBERS BUY ALL MILK IN SIGHT

HIGHLAND, Ill. (AP) — Twelve members of the National Farmers Organization entered three major food stores in Highland, Ill., Saturday and purchased all the milk on the shelves.

The NFO is conducting a milk withholding action in 25 states in an attempt to force up the price of milk paid to the dairymen.

Duane Wedekind, manager of the Piggly Wiggly store in Highland, said he replaced the milk with milk he had in storage after the farmers left. Wedekind said the action shortened the store's milk supplies for the weekend but he would be able to get more next week. Two other supermarket managers said they had plenty of milk in storage for customers and they followed suit in replacing the milk bought by the NFO members.

GOP Fears Split Over Viet Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leaders are soft-pedaling GOP differences over President Johnson's Vietnam policies that apparently run as deep as those Democrats air publicly almost daily.

When the GOP Policy Committee directed its staff last week to draft a study of Vietnam war policies, it was with the clear understanding that there would be no attempt to forge any party position on the issue.

The committee expects to have in about two weeks what Chairman Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, calls a "completely objective analysis."

The problem of Hickenlooper and Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois at this point is to avoid advertising the same kind of party split that Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., and Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., have made clear exists among the Democrats.

Although they can't prevent their colleagues' from embarking on individual excursions, Dirksen and Hickenlooper are not about to contribute to any public Republican ruckus on the issue.

Dirksen and Hickenlooper are classified as "hawks," as are a majority of the Senate's 36 Republicans.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York lately has swung away from this group to the stop-the-bombing side but Sen. Clifford P. Case of New Jersey said he doubts this is the time to halt air strikes.

Sens. George D. Aiken of Vermont, dean of Republicans in the Senate, Thomas H. Kuchel of California, the assistant leader, John Sherman Cooper of Oregon and Charles H. Percy of Illinois all are listed as "doves."

Uneventful Congress In Recess

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the 90th Congress head home Thursday for a 10-day Easter recess after the first 11 weeks of a session that may be the dull-est and least productive since the late 1950s.

Despite a steady stream of presidential proposals in fields ranging from educational television to open housing, little has been accomplished so far by either branch and little is close to passage.

Congress has raised the debt limit to $336 billion and authorized spending an additional $4.5 billion in Vietnam, and the Senate has approved the historic Soviet-U.S. consular treaty. But most of the President's major proposals are buried in legislative committees.

Hearings on the alleged wrongdoing of two Democrats, Rep. Adam Clayton Powell of New York and Sen. Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut, have provided the biggest congressional news of the past three months.

Rescue Tot From Well After 9 Hour Ordeal

VOTAW, Tex. (AP) — Two-year-old Theresa Fregia laughed and chattered Saturday, safe after an army of men scrambled with bare hands, draglines and a big drilling rig to free her from nine hours of imprisonment in the bottom of an old well.

The crater they carved in the red clay of this southwest Texas logging village gaped as a reminder of the child's second close brush with death in her brief life.

In Saturday's early hours, a rescue expert vanished over the side of a crumbling parallel shaft and brought the sobbing Theresa to safety.

Doctors at Beaumont, 70 miles away, said Theresa suffered only a few scratches on her abdomen and a scare.

When she was 3 months old, Theresa was injured in a two-car smashup in which her father, Douglas, was killed. She lay unconscious for weeks.

Theresa was in the care of an aunt, Patsy Alleman, 15, who left the bright, brown-eyed child playing on the back porch of the tin-roofed house and walked into the front to check on another charge.

Theresa's brother, Glenn, 9, that was at 5:30 p.m. When Patsy returned, she said, "I heard Theresa screaming and hollering. I heard her call 'auntie!' but I didn't know where she was."

Then Patsy noticed the cover was off the old well. Theresa had fallen 28 feet, halting just inches above the waterline. The well is ten inches in diameter.

In minutes, the town turned out, as did engineers and drillers from miles around.

While men scrambled at the hard clay, a rope was dropped and Theresa's parents coaxed her to put both arms through the loop. She tried one arm, then the other, but not both, and she clung to the rope until the rescue.

Five hours after her plunge, a crane-dragline and a clam-digger earth-scooping machine had eaten away a 16-foot crater. But the crater fast was becoming too deep for the equipment.

Lane Texas Co. of Houston, 60 miles to the southwest, rushed a giant drilling rig to the scene. The operator, Gordon Kinder of Houston, gingerly brought up load after load of clay.

At 2:20 a.m., Ransom Bill Jr., 46, founder of Houston's Mercy Corps, clipped a rope to a leather harness and dropped into the rescue shaft.

"They drilled it just perfectly," he said.

Bill cracked a chink in the well pipe with a shovel. Theresa's hand wriggled out. "Hammer!" Bill called, and a sledgehammer was lowered.

He smashed through the well pipe, and he and Theresa reached out for each other. "That was the most wonderful feeling in the world," Bill said. "She grabbed me and she said, 'daddy.' She faintly, just passed out."

New S. Viet Constitution To Be Viewed

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky is flying to the Guam conference Sunday with South Vietnam's new constitution, turned out by the Constitution Assembly 10 days ahead of schedule at his suggestion so he could show it to President Johnson.

By unanimous vote of all the 102 deputies present, the assembly gave final approval Saturday to a draft providing for a blend of presidential and parliamentary forms of government, an independent judiciary and a two-house national legislature.

The 117-member assembly, elected last September, had been working toward a March 27 deadline for completion of the national charter, a basis for conversion of this war-ravaged nation from military to civilian rule. The junta has 30 days to offer amendments.

Flying from Guam, the conference site which is their regular base, B52 Stratofortresses dropped 30-ton bomb loads on suspected Communist holdings in three provinces of South Vietnam.

One attack by the eight-engine jets was made west of Da Nang, headquarters of the northernmost 1st Corps area, where such strikes have developed almost daily for more than two weeks.

U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops keep watch in that area against the possibility Hanoi regulars will try another invasion in force directly across the border demilitarized zone, such as was frustrated in heavy fighting last summer.

At sea, the destroyed Stoddard became the fourth U.S. warship to be hit by Communist gunfire in patrols off North Vietnam.

A spokesman said the Stoddard took a 10 by 18-inch hole in the side above the waterline in silencing a coastal battery 75 miles north of the border Friday.

There were no casualties, the hole was plugged and the Stoddard remains fully operational, the spokesman said. Of the three vessels previously hit, there were casualties aboard only one, the destroyer Keppler.

Heavy weather over North Vietnam Friday limited U.S. pilots to 77 missions, largely in the southern panhandle. Targets included a string of 75 barges sighted on banks of the Ca river northwest of Vinh. The Air Force said 15 were destroyed and many more were damaged.

Communist gunners shot down a propeller-driven Navy Skyraider, the 48th plane officially acknowledged as lost in the air campaign over the north. The pilot was rescued.

LADY BIRD BEGINS CARIBBEAN TRIP

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson heads for a Caribbean vacation in the Virgin Islands, while her husband is off conferring at another U.S. territory in the Pacific, Guam.

The First Lady is expected to arrive Sunday at Caneel Bay Plantation on St. John's in the Virgin Islands for a stay of four or five days. It's a spot she has been to before—in June 1965—and one of which she is fond.

During her stay on the island, part of which is a national park, Mrs. Johnson will occupy a house that often is used by her fellow conservation promoter, Laurence Rockefeller.

She stayed there the last time she visited the Virgin Islands.

Johnson told his luncheon guests that the nation faces many crises, but he said they "are the sort that a great nation should want to have."

In his opening talk to the governors Saturday morning, Johnson told them the day's sessions would expose them to current thinking and plans of his Cabinet.

"But above all," he said, "we have not asked you here to preach or lecture to you; we have asked you to counsel with us on the matters that concern us all. The closer we can work together, the sooner, the better, the more economically the job will be done."

Johnson said the nation faces problems never dreamed of and that while many of them are state responsibilities, few states can meet them alone and thus a federal-state partnership has been developed.

Garrison relied chiefly on the testimony of one witness, Perry R. Russo, to convince three Criminal District Court judges that the state did not play all its cards in the four-day preliminary hearing for Shaw that ended Friday. "If we had needed more goods we would have brought them in," he said.

At a preliminary hearing, a prosecutor normally offers just enough evidence to show probable cause to hold the defendant for trial. The rest of the evidence is carefully guarded until the trial as a means of keeping the defense in the dark.

Indications were that a bill of information, the next step in the process of taking Shaw to trial, would be filed next week by the district attorney.

Garrison said it was not his "impression" that the three men intended to actively participate in an assassination attempt. Dallas was not mentioned, Russo said.

Garrison said on Feb. 18 he had solved the Kennedy assassination and would prove it resulted from a New Orleans-based conspiracy. At the Shaw hearing, he did not attempt to link the alleged conspiracy described by Russo with the actual assassination.

Russo told of attending only one meeting at which he heard such talk.

In asking for a warrant to search Shaw's home, Garrison referred to "meetings" in Ferrie's apartment at which there was discussion and agreement on a plan to kill the president.

One of the prosecution's sources of investigation, the district attorney said, "is a confidential informant who was present at these meetings."

Johnson Predicts Increase In Federal Aid To States

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson told the nation's governors Saturday the next five years may bring a fourfold increase in federal financial grants to the states to $60 billion yearly. And he reportedly promised them more highway funds next year.

Johnson appealed to 49 governors of the states and territories for cooperation in solving the nation's problems but — according to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York — said he didn't want from them any solution on Vietnam policy.

Republican state executives who met by themselves Friday night had made it pretty clear they would try to avoid voicing anew support for the administration's Vietnam policies. Previous similar sessions had done so.

Rockefeller left the all-day sessions early to go back to Albany and said that by midafternoon there had been no discussion of Vietnam.

All the emphasis at the early sessions with 48 men and Gov. Lurleen Wallace of Alabama was on federal-state cooperation in solving the nation's problems — "birth pangs of fundamental new process" in government, Johnson termed it.

In addition to Johnson, the governors heard from members of the Cabinet and other officials, and newsmen were told there were question-and-answer sessions with more than half the state executives taking part.

On the schedule Saturday night: a black-tie dinner at the executive mansion with musical entertainment later. That gave former Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama his first opportunity of the day to attend, as his wife's escort.

After the night entertainment Johnson scheduled a midnight departure for Guam and a conference with U.S. and South Vietnamese leaders in the Southeast Asian war. At Saturday's luncheon the governors joined in a toast to the success of the President's mission to Guam.

Johnson told his luncheon guests that the nation faces many crises, but he said they "are the sort that a great nation should want to have."

In his opening talk to the governors Saturday morning, Johnson told them the day's sessions would expose them to current thinking and plans of his Cabinet.

Milk Strike Failing To Reduce Supplies

CHICAGO (AP)—The National Farmer's Organization's milk withholding campaign apparently had little effect Saturday on the weekend trade.

Reports that supplies were near normal came from states and cities in the 25-state area staked out by the NFO in its drive to boost prices received by farmers by two cents a quart.

The Hawthorn-Mellody Farms, Chicago distributors, reported: "No problems. We're taking care of all our orders."

A sampling of retail stores there brought word that supplies were of normal size and customers were buying in normal amounts.

Scattered reports of dumping and draining came in on the third full day of the holdback aimed at increasing the prices paid to producers, now generally 8 to 10 cents a quart.

Oren Lee Staley, NFO president, called the next 96 hours crucial.

"We are just now getting into the heart of the holding action," he said at his Corning, Iowa, headquarters. "The next 96 hours will be crucial."

Staley said the NFO will meet Monday in several places with "important segments" of the dairy industry which asked for conferences. He did not identify them.

The NFO figures dairies now are using up stocks they had on hand.

Someone broke into a milk house on a farm in Athens County, Ohio, and opened a tank valve. Some men stopped a truck picking up milk from farms near Athens and forced the driver to drain the milk.

NFO members from counties in southern Georgia spilled 300 quarts of milk on a farm near Valdosta while spectators shouted: "Look at those dirty men pouring out milk when all the poor folks are going hungry."

The Michigan Milk Producers Association said some of its members and tank truck drivers had been threatened.

Lt. Gov. William Milliken, in the absence of Gov. George Romney, issued a statement saying: "It is a criminal offense to stop or hinder the operation of any vehicle transporting farm or commercial products."

The NFO said the strike was highly effective in Michigan but dairies reported only a small drop in milk receipts.

Two men were arrested while dumping milk from a tank truck on Main Street in Cuba City, Wis. The men, one of whom owned the truck, were charged with dumping on a public highway.

Milk receipts from producers were down 1 to 4 per cent in the St. Louis area but the retail business apparently was not affected.

Kentucky's largest dairy cooperative, Kynam Milk Products, Inc., reported deliveries from farms were off 6 per cent. But there were no reports of shortages for the weekend trade.

The milk industry estimated that about only 1 per cent of the consumer supply was affected in New Jersey.

Volunteer Rescue Work A Task For The Hardy

By VIRGIL REITHER

BEARDSTOWN — A cold rain was slanting in a gusty wind on a cloudy day. The temperature was 20 degrees. The choppy waters of the Illinois river were tossing three row boats in constant chaos that severely hampered the activities of the three Beardstown Rescue Unit volunteers who manned each of the craft.

Dusk and its attending scant visibility had forced a reluctant decision. Search for the body of a youngster missing 24 hours after a fishing accident must be halted until morning.

As the boats headed for docking at a point near the Beardstown highway bridge hot coffee was being poured into mugs for the near-frozen occupants and the steaming liquid was thankfully received as the men, their clothing soaked and their limbs stiff, jumped ashore after hours of dragging operations.

Scene Familiar

Scenes similar to this have been re-enacted many times since the organization here several years ago of the Rescue Unit.

The dedicated men and women who "dreamed" of its formation did not calculate the risk, the discomforts, of the sacrifice that would be required; nor did they consider the cost.

But they knew of the need and their planning and determination have furnished Beardstown with a Rescue Unit second to none in this area, one which has rallied for every emergency to accomplish untold good that often is taken for granted.

No Salary

There is no salary connected with this job. In fact by the time a Rescue unit volunteer equips himself with the warm clothing he needs for winter-time duty he finds he has made a considerable personal investment in the project. Few if any of these hardy souls have given it a thought. Uppermost in their minds is that they be ready to help where help is needed, no matter what the situation is, or what efforts are required.

It was the members of the Rescue Unit who were called into action on a recent cold night when a woman driver lost control of her car on the Arenzville hill and crashed into Indian Creek. She was drowned when trapped in the submerged car. Her body and the car were recovered quickly.

Weeks before the unit had devoted three days in blustery weather dragging for the body of a man reported to have jumped from the Beardstown highway bridge.

This effort was in vain and local officials now believe that the evidence indicating the man had jumped into the river was a hoax. There have been several of these in the experience of the unit.

Unit Being Reorganized

Jack Wetherell, one of the charter members of the unit, says that there have been membership rolls showing up to 100 volunteers but that the rolls no longer are up to date. He also says that a reorganization of the unit is in progress.

Beardstown volunteer firemen are the nucleus of the Rescue Unit and at a session two weeks ago the reorganization was decided upon. When this is completed the records of members will be brought up to date, a listing of available rescue and emergency equipment will be made and the functioning of this most necessary group will be perfected.

Complete With Ambulance

Recently the local group obtained a new vehicle — a second hand Cadillac equipped for ambulance use and containing numerous survival items.

The wives of Beardstown rivermen and other lady volunteers are also organized here for whatever emergency occurs, and are primarily pointed for giving assistance to needy tow-boat crewmen. However, they have been active in helping the rescue unit as well.

SLEEK AND SILKY
Polished and clingy or pow and swiny—that's spring '67. The greatest fashion going, and the one that will get the most mileage, is the sleek, silky-looking acetate knit. Tops and shifts, miniskirts, pants and even matching caps for the mod in you will be available in your favorite shops.

On Kiwanis Program

"What's New in Scouting," an illustrated program on Scouting, was presented Thursday to the Jacksonville Kiwanis Club by the Boy Scouts Honest Abe District executive, Richard A. Armstrong (center). With Armstrong are Dr. Frank Nestler (left), club president; and J. R. Davidsmeyer, program chairman (right).

In the three-county area of the Honest Abe District, which is a part of the nine-county Abraham Lincoln Council, there are more than 1,100 Scouts and 451 volunteer Scouting leaders. One in five eligible boys in the district is a Scout, since it is estimated there is a Scouting-age population of 5,200. There is a continuing membership campaign, and last year the district was one of 45 which met its membership goal.

EYE SHADOW ADDS DEPTH

Eye shadow adds depth and luster to your eyes. But at all costs avoid a too-bright clownish look. For daytime, try the soft hazy shades, such as brown, gray, amber, pale blue and turquoise. White shadow used under colored shadow gives a clear tone. Used over shadow, white gives a pearly translucence. For after-dark eyes, brighter hues are effective, as well as the frosted shades. And if you use cream or stick shadow, set the color with a faint dusting of powder.

FROM SHOULDERS TO HAND

The swagger's back and full of swing. Shoulder strap bags now easily convert to handbags with an easy adjustment of the strap. Although fashionably petite the styles are roomy because of accordion-pleated sides that open wide. Hardware trim on the outside gives a mark of distinction.

Town & Country Charge. It gives you more time to enjoy spring fever.

Here's our plan.

You make a list of all the things you'll need this Spring—new clothes, garden tools, lumber, tires, everything—and we'll help you get to the bottom of it. And fast. So fast you'll have time to enjoy being lazy, for a change.

First, you can shop where it's convenient for you, because you've got the card that tells them who you are in over 43,000 stores. That's fast.

Next, you can't run out of money. You can shop all day, from Garden Center to gasoline station, and never be caught short. That's fast.

But, you always know where you stand. With every purchase you get a uniform little sales slip that tells you what you've purchased and how much it cost. That's organized.

And besides being fast and organized, your Town and Country Charge is free. As long as you pay for your shopping within 25 days of the billing date, there's no charge. If you extend payments, there is a charge, of course. But it's computed at low bank rates.

Stop in for your Town and Country Application. You don't have to be a regular bank customer to get one. It's just one of the services you can rely on from our bank.

Cars In East Germany Raise Eye, Questions

KARL MARX STADT, East Germany (AP) — In East Germany the automobile is a symbol for the party and a goal for the people.

The ability to deliver a good, cheap car would symbolize Communist success in their centrally run economy. For the people, possession of a car is something tangible to show for hard work since World War II.

Against this background, the appearance of an American car, a focal point in this area.

Whenever an American correspondent stops in East Germany his car provokes conversations with workers, passersby and officials.

Two questions are always asked:

"How fast does it go?"

"How much does it cost?"

And usually these are added:

"Can the average worker afford one?"

"How much does the average worker in the United States make?"

Given such information, East Germans react variously.

A young worker in Karl Marx Stadt — formerly Chemnitz — where the car drew night and day attention while parked in a lot, said: "I have put a down payment on a Wartburg (made in East Germany). They cannot even tell me when I can expect to get it."

In Rostock, a group of construction workers, including their foreman, stood around the American car and measured it with a carpenter's rule.

When the visitor came out of a harbor warehouse, accompanied by a local Communist functionary, the worker asked to see the engine, interior and trunk. The functionary said there was no time.

Replied the foreman: "Come on, Willi. Let him show us. How often do we get the chance to see something like this here?"

Cars made in East Germany are the Trabant, with three models, and the bigger Wartburg, with five. The Trabant starts at 7,800 marks and the Wartburg is 15,000-17,000.

The dollar value is difficult to compute. The East German tourist rate is 4.2 marks to the dollar. West Berlin banks quote a rate of 11.8 east marks to the dollar.

Automobile prices are manipulated in order to keep demand in line with supply, which is limited by a shortage of materials.

The average wage in East Germany is about 550 marks a month. Tax in the price of a Wartburg may run as high as 10,000 marks.

About 660,000 cars were licensed in East Germany at the end of 1965, with well over two million motor bikes and scooters of various types. The population is 17 million.

Communist officials are sensitive about the situation. Said one official in a mill, "The problem with our cars — getting enough to meet the demand — is well known."

This sensitivity is heightened by the appearance not only of an occasional American car but of West German cars in far greater numbers. This makes for an all-German postwar comparison and the Communist output, despite allowances for the disadvantages resulting from division, suffers from the comparison.

VITAL FACTOR

The civet, a small mammal, is a vital factor in the world's perfume industry because of a substance in its body that "fixes" the aroma of essences and attars. Sometimes called musk, this substance is secreted in sacs near the animal's tail and is highly regarded by world perfumers.

Trains Still Have Much To Offer

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Writer

In the six hours it takes a train to roll across New Mexico, a jet traveler spans a continent with two drinks, lunch and a first run movie.

To the man at 35,000 feet, the train is more than invisible. It doesn't even exist. It has gone the way of the passenger pigeon, the dinosaur and the blue whale.

But the train does exist. And for the jet-weary traveler who can reconcile himself to 40 hours between Los Angeles and Chicago, it offers a chance — rare these days — to think, to dream, to pause in the perspective of men against mountains and canyons and the night.

Lack Some Extras
True, the train is something less than the luxurious caravans of the Thirties. It no longer offers haircuts and hairdos, tub baths and showers, an on-board library or a uniformed boy with bouquets of carnations and roses for the passengers.

True, the stations themselves faded images of a former glory. Even Union Station in Los Angeles is sticky with spilled soda pop, and the patently recalls the glittering entrances of movie stars.

But a train today has an intangible glitter of its own. Time and contrast are the luxuries it offers.

It may be a champagne dinner in the Turquoise Room of the Super Chief, or breakfast in a City of Los Angeles dome car, or it may be a quiet drink in your stateroom. Or it may be the reds and oranges of Arizona and New Mexico, recalling some prehistoric sea. Or it may be a purple sunset over the California high desert, or the endless beige ocean of Kansas grain, or the gray, moving strength of the Mississippi.

What You Miss
Maybe it's daydreaming an Indian war party on the crest of a ridge. Maybe it's a little city girl looking at the vast tableland and asking, "What happened to the cities?" Maybe it's a 4-year old boy remembering the furtive meal-time rush of a jet plane and catching on to the gentler philosophy of a train, saving his soda pop with the promise, "I'll finish it tomorrow."

And maybe it's the mere fact that tomorrow you'll be where you are tonight — on the train — and so, what's the hurry?

Leaving on a train is something like an ocean liner. Relatives come to see you off, arms loaded with candy, fruit, nuts, magazines, toys and strong drink — enough to last at least two weeks. They crowd your stateroom with sentiment and themselves. And when the porter announces that visitors must leave, they crowd the platform below, and a lot of people cry. It's very sad — for at least 15 minutes.

People cry more at train stations than at airports. Maybe it's because leaving on an airplane is like hanging up on the telephone. You can soon call back if you want to. But in a train you'll be going to a lot of strange places like Dodge City, Kan., and La Junta, Colo., and there is the feeling you'll be gone for a long time and out of touch.

King In The West

Perhaps the long-distance train is in dire need of help in the East where it is destined to become a sort of high-speed subway between city centers. But west of Chicago, the train is in its own country.

People don't forget trains. They will likely remember an overnight mail run from Chicago to Denver, but never recall which airline they took to Cincinnati.

They travel more now, but remember it less. In the West, railroads have something besides a trip to sell. They have pleasure for the eye and the mind in the endless landscape, carved by wind and rain out of sandstone and granite, and marked by trails that brought man and his history to the wilderness.

The train borrows from the land it rolls through, from the great tanned plains of Texas, the bleak surprise of the Great

Salt Lake, the tortured climb up a mountain and the cautious dash down the other side. The engine winks in the night to one lonely light from one lonely house on one lonely mountain peak. And it calls around blind curves to no one on the other side.

For the passenger at the window, each stop means something different. At Gallup, N.M., an Indian boy and his dog watch from a hillside as the train slips into town. They don't see the small hands waving from inside.

In Arizona, the train pauses between dashes in front of an old burned-out adobe where the neatly laid out empty stock pens speak of someone's lost dreams, something less than a century old.

Memories Created
At midnight in a small station in Kansas, an elderly train hand tries with little success to push a rusty old baggage cart, gives up in anger and kicks it. Then he catches the eyes watching from the darkened train window, waves sheepishly and walks quickly away.

And when the train pulls into the industrial fringes of Chicago, you find yourself still remembering the magic of the train the first night out of Los Angeles. Long after you should have been asleep, you lay there in your pajamas and watch the massive silhouettes of the Sierra Nevada mountains glide softly past, cold and black against a silver-blue sky.

High overhead, you remember, the running lights of a jet plane flickered by, and inside the passengers were probably stubbing out their cigarettes, and fastening their seat belts, and looking anxiously out of their windows for signs of earth. And now you have a sense of how much they saved in time, and how much they missed.

LOTS OF DUST

Of the estimated 43 million tons of dust that settles over the United States each year, 31 million tons are from natural sources and the remaining 12 million tons are caused by human activities.

UI's 'Millie' New U.S. Milk Champion

How many cows does it take to produce an average of 44 quarts of milk daily—enough to provide 176 children with one glass of milk each?

Only one—if she's the national champion milk producer Illini Jim Millie D. C.

Millie, bred and raised by the University of Illinois, certainly has contributed her part to the U. of I. Centennial celebration. She has set a national record for junior four-year-old Holstein cows milked twice daily during a 305-day lactation, says U. of I. dairy scientist E. E. Ormiston.

Her 28,530 pounds of milk produced in 305 days is about twice the average Holstein per-cow production in the United States. And it is 350 pounds more than the previous record-holder in her class. Millie's butterfat production weighed in at 834 pounds.

Her first two production efforts were also good. As a two-year-old, she produced 16,089 pounds of milk and 614 pounds of butterfat in 305 days. And in 295 days she produced 16,066 pounds of milk and 663 pounds of butterfat as a three-year-old.

At her peak of production, Millie ate about 40 pounds of grain mixture a day. Throughout her lactation she was fed as much alfalfa hay and corn silage as she could eat.

Ormiston emphasizes that Millie was milked in the milking parlor with the rest of the U. of I. herd. "She received only the little extras in attention that conscientious dairy-men give cows that respond by giving more milk," he says.

Church Attendance Growing

Minister's Wife Says Miniskirt Expressive

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON (AP) — "I think that I can help many young people find God," said the miniskirted young wife of a British Methodist minister.
"I think miniskirts are super," Marjorie Janney continued. "They express the freedom of our age. One can move about in a miniskirt."
"By being modern I feel I can encourage young people to realize that religion does not mean disapproval."
Newspaper pictures of the Rev. Denis Janney's shapely 28-year-old wife in a skirt that ended six inches above her knees brought her a bunch of anonymous critical letters.
"We burned the letters," said Mrs. Janney.
"It's not their business what sort of skirt my wife wears," said her husband, whose parish is in southeast London. "It's this sort of intolerance which keeps many people from going to church. I'm proud of my wife and proud to have her a member of my church."
Mrs. Janney, a red-haired model and the mother of a 7-year-old daughter, says since she started wearing short short skirts she has done two television commercials and has been offered two parts in the movies.
The band of the King's Hussars also named her their pinup.
Mrs. Janney takes an active part in church life. She gives hours each week to a church youth club, speaks regularly to women's organizations and gives fashion and beauty hints to young wives.
She and her husband said the critical letters came from outsiders, not from his parishioners.
"So far as we know," said the minister, "no one in the congregation objects to my wife's skirt. The fact is — our attendance is growing."

Mt. Everest Climber Claims Abominable Snowman Existed

DARJEELING, India (AP) — Believes he heard the shrill, ti-fuel, near the monastery. Suddenly he heard a long, piercing scream. Frightened nearly out of their wits, the children ran crying to the monastery and told the abbot of their experience. The old man told them it was merely the call of the Yeti, the legendary apeman of the Himalayas. The lama then held special prayer sessions to calm the boys, but Gombu remembers that it was two full days before he could think about the scream.

It was one holiday period, Gombu recalls, and he and some friends were gathering dry yak dung, used as cookstove without shuddering. Gombu, of course, had seen numerous drawings supposedly representing the Yeti, in his Tibetan text books at the monastery. During his last visit to the Everest region, in 1965, Gombu traveled through hill settlements, asking the older people whether they had ever seen a Yeti. All of them believe in the Snowman's existence. Gombu relates, but no one, even one man nearly 100 years old, had ever seen the Yeti.

Several told of having heard the Yeti's scream. Gombu said during a talk with newsmen that he felt the Yeti lived in the mountains at about 10,000 feet, where he could forage for plant growth. But the Sherpa feels that with all of the mountain expeditions of recent years one of them would have discovered a Yeti if the creature still lived. He points out that communications are better in the mountain region, and on the other side of the border Communist Chinese troops are on patrol, yet there have never been any substantiated reports of a Yeti being seen.

Therefore, Gombu concludes, the Yeti has gone the way of the dinosaur.

Gombu was a member of the 1963 American expedition which conquered the 29,028-foot Everest, and one of the four men in the Indian team which reached the summit in 1955. He thus became the only man to climb the mountain twice.

MY REAL OWN TREE! Little red-haired Mike McCord, an eight-year old East St. Louis youngster, gets a hand with drilling a hole in a maple tree, preparing to tap his own sap, from Marie Houlette of Greenfield.

NEXT THE SPILE—Mike drives the spile home about two inches back into the maple tree, as Marie observes out of view of the camera.

NOT WASTING A DROP—Like the Dutch fable of the boy at the dike, Mike doesn't waste a drop as he waits for the arrival of a plastic sack to catch the sap, which is already running.

Homemade Maple Syrup By Marie

Greenfield Woman Busy As A Bee

Marie, call off the search! I made it out of the Greene county wilds okay.

Marie is Marie Houlette of Greenfield, and every year about this time she takes to the timber to tap maple trees.

The last time I saw Marie was at her maple syrup camp a week ago Saturday. Marie was duly promised that if I ever found the way back to civilization, there'd be a write-up of how she made maple syrup in the paper by at least Wednesday.

"Well, if I don't see it by Wednesday, we'll start a search party," she called out after me, as I tried to figure the way back through timber and fields.

Returning from the pleasant morning wasn't too difficult, though I did become a little thirsty the second time around that same patch of woods; a cold bug was the reason the story hasn't appeared until now. Hope you haven't been searching Marie, and if you have thanks anyway.

Anyhow, this excursion into the whys and hows of making maple syrup all started when Harvey Moore of Jacksonville was taking his morning coffee at the Drexel some weeks ago.

Spiles & Pails
Harvey remarked, "Well, it won't be long before Marie's

MAPLE SYRUP CAMP IN GREENE COUNTY—"Just like the good old days." That's Marie Houlette's description of her maple syrup camp in Greene county, outside of Greenfield. Marie spends approximately a month tapping the trees, and preparing the sap for syrup. She says, "I'd always wanted to have pancakes with my own maple syrup," and she has for the past three years.

Houlette gets her spiles and pails ready.

"Go on Harvey," someone pressed.

So, Harvey told about Marie who makes her own maple syrup from the ground up process. Marie also paints, sculpts, experiments with wild flowers, and as a native put it, "Marie's just about as busy as a person could be."

Harvey met Marie, and her husband Howard, who runs the feed and grain store in Greenfield, through the area art association shows.

Marie told a Journal reporter he was more than welcome to come down to Greenfield and visit camp.

Thus, after several delays caused by the weather, the reporter finally reached Greenfield Saturday, March 11 in 78 degree temperature with the sun shining.

Marie was there ready to head out.

"It's something that I've always wanted to do; have pancakes with my own homemade maple syrup. I wanted my children to see how it was done, because children nowadays miss so many of the good old customs."

After a three-quarter mile hike back through muddy fields, timber, over fences, all of which are sort of rugged for a guy used to concrete, we reached camp.

Grove of 60 Trees

There, in a grove of 60 maple trees were the taps, a few pieces of lawn furniture, and ashes from an old fire . . . camp.

"Thirsty?"

An answer was not necessary.

So, Marie went over to one of the trees and dipped a glass into a container of fresh sap.

"Drink sap?"

"Sure, go on. It's good."

And, it was, even after the second glass.

Then, Marie busied herself preparing to boil the sap.

She explained that during three years, she has been making maple syrup, "the word usually gets around, and I always have someone offer to let me tap their trees." This year, she was on ground owned by the former Jersey county sheriff Paul Miller.

"Oldtimers up around the store say these trees are about 40 to 50 years old, and that this originally was a maple grove."

Working on a fire, using Girl Scout tactics practiced for the 16 years she's been associated with the organization, she noted that she starting tapping February 15 last year, and March 1 this year.

"We ran camp for a month and a half last year. The weather cuts off camp. When it turns warm, the sap begins to turn a milky color, and that's the sign to quit."

With a good fire going, Marie went about the next step, putting the square vats for cooking the sap slightly above the

"I like to see how long it takes to bring the sap to a boil when I hit camp. Last year, I did it in 28 minutes once."

Now, Marie was at the trees, preparing to empty the plastic and metal containers of sap.

"Last year we tapped 11 trees. This year only eight."

Not Romantic, But Functional

"I know they don't look as romantic as the little pails, but this is a little easier," she explained.

Each tree had at least four taps, and all were on the same side of the tree. Why? Marie said that all of the taps are placed on the sunny side of the tree, because the sunshine warms the tree, and the sap flows easier. "Yes, those are little things that you learn the hard way," Marie admitted.

A hole, two and one-half inches deep, is bored into the tree, then a metal pipe, one-half or three-quarters of an inch in diameter, called a spile, is inserted in the hole.

A little pocket is left between the back of the hole and the edge of the spile for the sap to drain easier. Ordinary plastic garden hose is then placed over the exposed end of the spile.

Holes for the plastic tubing are cut into the tops of the containers, and you're in business.

I must have been sick that day in high school when the biology teacher explained capillary action, but Marie explained that sap runs up the tree, and not down.

She said that when the spiles are removed from the tree, nature heals the tree quite nicely.

"The pioneers tapped maples for sap using a wooden V type trough, or the hollow stem of a sumac bush or elderberry tree."

After emptying the containers of sap in the large vats, Marie cleaned off a lawn chair and relaxed.

"I guess I'm sort of a bug on the outdoors. I'm doing research now on edible wild flowers. Have you ever heard of the wild asparagus? The bulbs at the roots look like small potatoes, and the top is as sweet as asparagus . . . it's a cattail."

Boiling It Down

After the sap has boiled down, which takes four to five hours, it's "packed out of camp, strained through a mesh cloth, and allowed to settle. Then the clear syrup is re-boiled and then canned."

Marie admitted that it takes between 35 to 40 gallons of sap to make one gallon of syrup. Last year, she was able to get 20 gallons of syrup, most of which she gave away.

Several friends of Marie's from East St. Louis came trudging over the hill, so Marie decided it was time to start lunch, and what a lunch! She said she couldn't explain the difference but food cooked and eaten out-of-doors always seems to taste better.

And from the looks of the diners after the meal, she was right.

Marie said that anyone, who is hardy enough to hike back to the camp is welcome to come down for a morning or afternoon to observe the process, providing they give her advance notice.

"Tell your friends to pack a lunch or bring a steak, and come on down. I know they'll enjoy it."

And enjoy it you will, whether you are interested in watching syrup made or not. It's a delightful experience, and Marie is a perfect hostess.

New York Stock Market

By ED MORSE
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market last week mounted one of its best rallies of 1967 as the Dow Jones industrial average finally topped its previous closing high, made Feb. 8.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 4.5 to 323.8, its sharpest weekly gain since the week ended Jan. 21, when it rose 4.7.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 21.27 to 899.77.

This topped the Feb. 8 closing high of 860.97 as well as the 866.26 on the morning of Feb. 9 before the market began a slide of this year's closing low of 836.64 on Feb. 27.

Volume this week was 53,209, 390 shares compared with the record 56.7 million the previous week.

Of 1,593 issues traded, 819 advanced and 623 declined.

Monday, the market was lower because, analysts said, it had risen too far and too fast the previous Friday session when there was an emotional blowoff triggered by President Johnson's request the 7 per cent investment tax credit be reinstated.

Tuesday also was lackluster as car sales in early March were reported 25 per cent below the like period a year ago. A plunge of 11% by Schenley on false rumors that its merger talks with Lorillard had been called off also dampened sentiment.

The Wednesday market climbed as Chrysler, which reported a sales improvement, broke its price line of 40 and Schenley rebounded 11% as its merger proposal was reaffirmed.

Blue chips came to life Thursday as large investors were drawn back into the market in a 12-million-share session.

Hope the Federal Reserve Board would lower the discount rate was prompted by a cut in the British bank rate. The Fed did not cut the rate however, and this caused some disappointment Friday.

The five most-active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Schenley, off 1/4% at 58 1/2 on 1,201,500 shares; Atlas Corp., up 1/4% at 41; Chrysler, up 3/4% at 42 1/2; Avco, up 3/4% at 40 1/2; and Link Belt, up 1/4% at 58.

Easier credit and the anticipation of more easing boosted most bond prices this week.

The exception was the new issue sector of the corporate market, which is under pressure from a heavy calendar.

Developments which produced reactions in the bond market this week included a statement by William McCleskey Martin Jr., Federal Reserve Board chairman, that the economy definitely was slowing; a rising trend of free reserves at Federal Reserve member banks; and bank rate cuts by the Netherlands and Britain.

Intermediate government bonds gained up to a point while longer-term issues advanced a half point.

The March meeting of Forum 8 was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Randall Killebrew Jr.

The paper of the evening, presented by Elmer Fedder, was entitled "Toll Free or Not Toll Free," dealing not with toll payments, as such, but rather the possible taxing of fuels for river barges in order to defray the expense of keeping up the waterways which they use.

The paper stated that President Johnson has recommended that Congress levy such a tax on fuel used for shallow-draft water transportation, and has done so annually since 1964.

Friends and foes of the proposal were quoted with many suggestions given.

Powell To Give 'Same Sermon' In Bimini Today

BIMINI, Bahamas (AP) — A surly Adam Clayton Powell said Saturday he would preach on this tiny Bahamian island Sunday the Palm Sunday sermon he dared not go to New York to deliver.

The deposed congressman had promised earlier that he would risk arrest by going to New York to walk the streets on Palm Sunday and to speak in Harlem's Abyssinian Baptist church on the theme, "When a Man Falls, He Shall Rise Again."

But Powell changed his mind Friday, saying he feared that his arrest would lead to violence and bloodshed by his people.

Returning today from a four-hour fishing trip, in which he lost a fight with a big marlin, Powell said he would deliver the sermon Sunday afternoon in a hotel patio here.

As Powell's boat came into the dock, a little rain squall ripped across the island. The clouds were as dark as his mood.

Stepping up on the white beach, Powell refused to answer any questions from newsmen about his case.

The 59-year-old Powell says he will stay at Bimini at least until April 4, when a court hearing is scheduled in Washington on his suit to regain the congressional seat he held for 22 years until he was barred from it by the House.

In New York, a sheriff also holds a warrant for his arrest on a criminal contempt charge stemming from a libel judgment he refused to pay. He later made a partial payment.

RED CHINA ARMY ASSUMES CONTROL OVER CAPITAL

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China's Army, which supports Chairman Mao Tse-tung, has extended its control of Peking by seizing the capital's schools, factories and municipal agencies, Japanese dispatches reported Saturday.

The reports from Peking by correspondents of the Japan Broadcasting Corp. and the newspaper Yomiuri coincided with mainland radio broadcasts saying the army had taken over farms and factories in the provinces of Anhwei, Kiangsi and Hupeh.

The Japanese dispatches and the Chinese broadcasts appeared to reinforce convictions that the 2.6 million-man army had become Mao's chief instrument in his struggle to oust followers of President Liu Shao-chi from places of power. In launching his purge in August, Mao used youthful Red Guards.

The Japanese dispatches said the extension of army control in Peking was started last Sunday with the seizure of the Peking Daily News. They said slogans were posted in the capital "warmly welcoming the army seizures."

McNamara Vetoes US Development Of Anti-Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has insisted anew that Soviet antimissile missiles cannot be effective and has said that despite them a U.S. strike-back would kill 120 million Russians.

And he added in testimony to Senate committees:

"It's very easy to change the pattern of targeting to raise that upwards."

The defense chief made these assessments when he testified in secret before the Armed Services and Appropriation committees in late January. Censored transcripts released Saturday night showed McNamara repeatedly parrying the critical questions of senators who feel the United States should start promptly the construction of Nike X antiballistic missile defenses.

Questioners noted that the Soviet Union already is building antimissile installations around Moscow and perhaps elsewhere. McNamara not only discounted the effectiveness of these but added that the Russians "have an absolute religious fanaticism on the subject of defense."

He said proof of this can be found in their huge expenditures on ground to air missile defenses against bomber attacks — installations which McNamara said now are obsolete or uneeded in a ballistic missile age.

He said this is based on Moscow's fear of a first blow by the United States despite this nation's tradition and policy of never striking first.

In the event of a Soviet nuclear attack on the United States, the retaliatory blow would be aimed at their people, McNamara made clear.

He put it this way: "I think we could all agree that if they struck us first, we are going to target our weapons against their society and destroy 120 million of them."

Later he added that this toll easily could be raised. Explaining his making public of such estimates and other data on U.S. nuclear capability, McNamara said it is because, "we want our people, our allies and the Soviets, to be under no misunderstanding as to our strength."

"It isn't enough for us to have the force. We must convince them we have it."

It was obvious that McNamara didn't convince all the senators. Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, voiced his misgivings this way: "The first nation that gets an effective antimissile and antissubmarine device is going to control the world. It is just that simple."

The Republicans are desperately trying to woo youthful voters in 1968. Their young stars, like Hatfield, Percy and Sen. Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts are rejecting any hard line of military victory in Vietnam.

Mr. Strauss designated the Chicago Title and Trust Co. as trustee of $50,000, to pay the net income from this trust estate to the Illinois hospital, to be known as the William Strauss Endowment.

The Pike County Red Cross chapter will receive $10,000 and the building it presently occupies on South Memorial street.

His bequest of $10,000 to the Pittsfield library is to be placed in a permanent fund known as the Strauss Endowment Fund, with only the income therefrom to be used for the general purposes of the library.

Other bequests include the following: To his niece, Elizabeth Greenbaum, $10,000; to his nephew, Henry E. Greenbaum, $10,000; to his great niece, Sally Brucker, $10,000; to his cousin, Elsie Jacobs, $5,000; to his nephew, Victor Jacobs, $5,000; to Paul M. Sanders of Pittsfield, $10,000; to each of the following nurses, $5,000; Vivian Brown, Delores Henderson, Nina Hazelrigg, Nina M. Coultas, and Rose Woodrum.

Mr. Strauss also named former employees of the old Strauss store in his will. The following will receive $5,000 each "for their faithful service": Pearl Vertrees, Ethel Ryan, Isabel Durr, Elsie Dell, Ruby Williamson, Vivian McClintock Fish, Marjorie Durr, Kenneth Weinart, Charles Troutner, and Mida Bergman.

The Cleveland Jewish Orphan Home in Cleveland, Ohio was bequeathed $1,000.

The remainder of the estate, Mr. Strauss bequeathed in half part each to his sister, Helen Greenbaum, and to his nephew Frederick Brucker. The inheritance tax imposed upon the beneficiaries is to be paid out of his residuary estate as part of the expense of administration.

THE OFFICIALS SIDE OF ACTION

A lot has been written about the players and fans at the annual state high school basketball tournament, but what about the officials who work the two-day "March madness" and catch nothing but caustic comments?

Former Jacksonville resident Paul Blakeman has worked the final two days at Champaign the past two seasons and, frankly, likes it. Between sessions Saturday afternoon Blakeman, who coached and served as principal at Chapin several years ago, expressed his pleasure at being selected to the highest prep job in Illinois.

Blakeman, currently superintendent at Pontiac High school, commented, "I think it is a great honor to be picked for the state finals. I certainly looked forward to it both years."

According to Blakeman, officials are selected to work the finals by the IHSAA. The available list from which the IHSAA chooses is determined by officials who work Sectionals. Officials for the Districts and Regionals are rated by the coaches of the participating teams. An official may be any age, but must have worked at least three Sectionals before being assigned to the finals.

Blakeman says officials usually serve two straight years when once picked, but there is no limit to the number of years. Officials who work the finals receive $125 and mileage from their home, and work a total of two games in the two days. Working assignments for the eight games in two days are not announced until just before game time. IHSAA boss Al Willis makes the final game selections.

WHAT ABOUT the pressure? "There is certainly some pressure to working the finals," says Blakeman. "The first time I stepped on the court I could feel it, but once the game starts, it's just like any other game."

"We're not told to make any special changes for working the finals, just call it the same way as we normally do. Mr. Willis generally picks certain officials to work certain games according to geography. If we live close to a team, we normally won't work in their game."

What about the much-discussed difference in northern and southern officiating? "There is definitely a difference. Northern officials tend to let the game go more, while southern officials will call the fouls more closely. However, I think the difference is getting to be less all the time."

Hayes And Houston Nip Mustangs 83-75

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Tall and talented Houston lost a 14-point lead to an incredible Southern Methodist rally but All-American Elvin Hayes made the big points and rebounds in the stretch for an 83-75 Houston victory in the NCAA Midwest regional basketball championship game Saturday night.

Little Denny Holman's ball-stealing, floor play and shooting ignited the amazing SMU rally which tied it twice at 71-61 and 72-68 after Houston seemed to have it wrapped up 68-56 with seven minutes left.

Houston's suffocating zone defense and tall, massive rebounding front line was the difference.

The 6-foot-8½ Hayes made the big goal, a jumper from the keyhole with 1:57 left for a 76-73 Houston lead.

Hayes finished with 31 points and 11 rebounds as he hit 14 of 27 field shots.

Hayes scored 20 the last half, mostly from 15 and 20-foot range.

Houston will take a 26-3 season record into the NCAA title round of four at Louisville next weekend. The independent Cougars were ranked No. 7 in the final Associated Press poll.

SMU's Southwest Conference champions finished 20-6 and failed in a bid for the 300th coaching victory for E.O. (Doc) Hayes, retiring after his 20th season as head coach March 18. Houston edged ahead 31-30 late in the first half and ran a 39-33 halftime edge to 51-37 early in the second half, with Hayes hitting a hot streak.

Houston got 11 points from 6-7 Melvin (The Savage) Bell including a tie-breaking jumper with 3:04 left which made it 74-72.

Charles Beasley led SMU with 18 and was a leader in his club's amazing 15-3 surge which tied the score. Holman scored 16.

Kansas rode Jo Jo White's 22-point scoring, ball-stealing and passing to a 70-68 victory over Louisville in the third-place game.

The defense and rebounding of high-leaping Vernon Vanoy and the deadly outside shooting of Bill Harmon also were big factors for Kansas.

But it was White, a smooth 6-foot-3 junior, who made the big plays for the Big Eight champions. Kansas, ranked No. 3 nationally, finished 23-4 for the season. Louisville wound up 23-5 and ranked second nationally.

A 12-lane bowling establishment in Buffalo, N. Y., added a 13th lane but avoided the jinx number of renumbering the third lane No. 2½.

No Doubt About It—Pekin Is Best Squad

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — There was no disagreement between the two coaches of the finalists in the 1967 Illinois High School Basketball Tournament: Pekin was the top team in the meet.

"They're a tremendous team," said Carbondale Coach John Cherry, whose Terriers were toppled by Pekin's Chinks 75-59 in the title game.

Asked if he had seen any better team in the tournament, Cherry replied: "I sure didn't."

Coach Dawson Hawkins, who captured his second state title, said he didn't give his team any complicated strategy before the Carbondale match.

"I just told them they were the best team down here," Hawkins said.

Hawkins said his team played good ball all year long but really started hitting its peak during regional tournaments.

"I never felt this team played up to its maximum until we got into the regionals," Hawkins added. "Then they started playing the best ball they've played all year."

How did this championship club compare with Pekin's 1964 champs?

"They were both great," Hawkins said. "I feel just the same as I did then."

The 1966 team finished with a 31-2 record while the '64 club wound up 30-3, Hawkins said.

Cherry said the overtime semifinal game against Rockford West took too much steam out of his big boys—6-foot-9 Bill Perkins and 6-foot-5 Peaches Laster.

"It was rather apparent that we played our game this afternoon," Cherry said. "The boys just ran out of gas."

"We seemed to have the spark on offense but on defense we just couldn't seem to pick up that loose ball."

Laster agreed that he had difficulty in the Pekin game.

"That game took a lot out of us," Laster said. "We just couldn't seem to bounce back."

He took the loss calmly and without tears.

Cherry was not a sore loser, and wouldn't blame his team's showing against Pekin on the rugged Rockford West game.

"Pekin probably would have beaten us even if we hadn't played West," Cherry said. "They are one tremendous team."

Robisch Only Sorry SHS Not In Final

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — "My only regret is that we didn't win the title."

So said Dave Robisch, Springfield's record-scoring center, after leading the Senators to an 81-65 victory Saturday night for third place in the Illinois High School Basketball Tournament.

Robisch, whose 152 points in four tournament games cracked the old 128 point mark set last year by Belleville's Joe Wiley, said he planned to take his time before deciding what college to attend.

He said he has narrowed the field to three conferences, the Big Ten, Big Eight and Missouri Valley, and two teams in the west.

Robisch, who needed 16 points in the final game to break Wiley's record, said he played his regular game.

"I was just hoping we'd win," the big center said.

Alex Saudargas, coach of Rockford West's fourth place Warriors, said his boys were physically unable to get up for the Springfield game after dropping a 67-66 overtime decision to Carbondale.

"Four of my boys had cramps in their legs," Saudargas said. "It's physical torture to try to play a game like that after you've shot all your marbles in the first."

The Warrior coach said he would recommend to Al Willis, president of the Illinois High School Association, that the consolation game be eliminated from future tournaments.

"There's nothing left to play for," he added.

Robisch Hits 152 Points For Record

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Dave Robisch shattered the Illinois State High School Basketball Tournament scoring record for four games Saturday night in leading Springfield to a third place finish over Rockford West 81-65.

Robisch whipped in 39 points to set a new record for a high school player. He scored 41 points and Rockford West suffered a 67-66 overtime loss to Carbondale.

The effects of the grueling semifinal game were apparent as Rockford West was unable to handle either Robisch or the Springfield team.

Springfield took an 18-14 lead at the quarter and was ahead 35-28 at the half while Robisch was scoring 20 points and already had smashed Wiley's record. Springfield made it 56-45 after three quarters and from then on it was strictly a matter of how many points the 6-foot-9 Robisch would score.

Springfield finished the season with a 29-4 record, while Rockford, which had started the day with a perfect 28-0 record, finished with 23-2.

The 88 points Robisch scored in two games Saturday gave him a fantastic season total of 1,057. His tournament total and an average of 38 points a game could stand for a long time.

Since the meet was the first division 4 outing held in a 25 yard pool, all best times set new district records.

Lewis Leads NC By Boston, 96-80

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Bob Lewis, whose clutch shooting put North Carolina into the finals, scored 31 points Saturday night and led the Tar Heels to a 96-80 victory over Boston College in the NCAA Eastern Regional basketball championships.

The Tar Heels, the No. 4 team in the nation, picked apart the zone defense of the Eagles to take a 71-64 lead with seven minutes remaining and then turned the game into a rout after Boston College shifted back to a man-to-man defense.

North Carolina, champions of the Atlantic Coast Conference, led 4-42 at halftime against the man-to-man, but Boston College went into a zone after intermission. Lewis, Bill Bunting and Ricky Clark found the zone easy pickings and the Tar Heels steadily increased their margin.

Lewis, a senior from nearby Washington, D.C., sank 11 of 18 field goal attempts and was credited with six assists as he stared for the second consecutive night. It was his seventh points in overtime that led the Tar Heels past Princeton in the semifinals.

Boston College, ranked ninth in the nation, jumped into a 12-3 lead at the start as Willie Wolters and Doug Hice each scored four points. But the Tar Heels rallied behind Lewis and regained the lead at 15-14.

Boston College trailed throughout the second half but kept rebounding from deficits until North Carolina began its runaway with seven minutes remaining.

Leading 69-64, the Tar Heels ran off seven consecutive points for a 76-64 lead with 5:45 to play.

Larry Miller scored 22 points from his backcourt position for North Carolina and assisted in five more baskets. Rusty Clark added 18 points and Bunting xad 12, all in the second half against the zone.

In the consolation final, Princeton outscored St. John's 14-2 at the start of the second half and walloped the Redmen 78-58.

Coach Bill Van Breda Kolff started five seniors for Princeton in their final collegiate game. Only two of them were normally in the starting line-up, and the Tigers fell behind, 13-5, in the opening minutes.

Sophomore Chris Thomforde, who led Princeton with 22 points and was credited with six assists from his post position, then entered the game and got the Tigers moving.

Rips Weary Terriers 75-59; Senators 3rd

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Pekin's hard-running Chinks wrapped up their second championship in four years Saturday night by slugging weary Carbondale 75-59 in the Illinois State High School Basketball Tournament.

Fred Miller, a 6-foot-4 pivotman with the grace of a ballet dancer, paced the blistering attack with a 36-point output.

Pekin's first title came in 1964 when the Chinks presented Coach Dawson Hawkins with the first place trophy on the strength of a 50-45 victory over Cobden, which is a 10-minute drive from Carbondale.

Carbondale battled gamely at the start but the Terriers quickly ran out of gas and the Chinks were in command throughout.

Finish at 31-2

The victory was the 31st against two losses for Pekin both of them to Peoria Central. Carbondale suffered its third defeat against 29 victories. The Terriers' only other losses were to Benton, a team Carbondale finally caught and eliminated in last Tuesday's supersectional.

Pekin, taking advantage of circumstances, opened up with a fast pace. The Chinks gained the finals with an easy 77-61 victory over Springfield and then sat back and watched Carbondale battle hard to a 67-66 overtime victory against Rockford West.

Not only did Pekin have an easier time in the semifinals but the Chinks also had a longer rest of some two hours. It also showed in the game for third place as Rockford West folded and lost to Springfield 81-65 even though Dave Robisch scored 39 points to post a four-game tournament record of 152 points.

Carbondale matched Pekin's challenge in the first quarter as the Terriers not only kept pace but took a 17-16 lead into the second quarter.

Take Final Lead
Doug Jones put Pekin ahead to stay, 18-17, with a jump shot from the side and Barry Moran connected on a 15-foot jump shot. Two baskets by Fred Miller boosted the lead to 24-17.

L. C. Brasfield and Bill Perkins closed the gap with successive baskets but Pekin clicked for six straight points to make it 30-21 and walked off at the intermission with a 34-23 lead.

Miller, who finished the four-game tournament with a total of 113 points, pumped in Pekin's first seven points of the second half to shove the Chinks ahead 41-27.

Miller scored four more points in the third quarter and Pekin went up 55-40.

Carbondale, which refused to quit, gave a final gasp early in the fourth quarter. Bill Perkins, Peaches Laster and L. C. Brasfield got in a few licks and the Terriers crept within 11 points.

However, they simply couldn't come up with a final kick and time after time Carbondale lost the ball because of traveling, a sin usually associated with weariness.

Bring In Subs
Pekin again stretched its lead to 15 points at 68-53 and substitutes from both benches finished the game.

Pekin won its semifinal game with ease despite Robisch's 41-point performance and Carbondale clinched its finals berth on a last second jump shot by Brasfield.

Carbondale's triumph ended Rockford West's undefeated string at 28 games in a game that was a barn-burner from start to finish.

Carbondale's biggest lead was five points in the first half and Rockford West, down most of the way, caught fire late in the third quarter and early in the fourth quarter when reserve Bob Cummins came in to sink four baskets, three in a row, to help send the Warriors steaming to a 59-51 lead.

During this spurt, Carbondale's 6-foot-9 pivotman, Bill Perkins, fouled out and it looked like curtains for the Terriers.

Then came the rally. Ken Lewis, Phil Gilbert and Terry Wallace scored to pull Carbondale within two points and Brasfield sank a basket with 41 seconds to play to tie the game and send it into overtime.

Peaches Laster put the Terriers ahead 61-59 but Cal Glover lifted Rockford into a tie with a short push shot.

Again Carbondale went ahead as Ken Lewis sank two free throws only to have Rockford go ahead 64-63 on a three-point play by Cliff Petteete.

Brasfield put Carbondale in front 65-64 with 27 seconds left and Rockford went ahead 66-65 with 11 seconds to go on a shot by Jim Sallis.

Carbondale called time out with nine seconds to play, got the ball over the center line and called time again with three seconds left. They mapped out the play — a pass to Brasfield who then fired from the free throw line to win the game.

Brasfield led the Terriers with 17 points while four of his teammates also finished in double figures. Glover was high for Rockford with 22.

The first game was a breeze for the well-balanced Chinks from Pekin. The Chinks took a 38-26 halftime lead and coasted the rest of the way even though Robisch, a 6-foot-9 southpaw, scored 16 points in the third quarter.

Despite this performance, Pekin added a point to its margin as Dave Martin scored 11 of his total 24 points while Robisch was Mark Stoddard with eight points.

Pekin got a 22-point effort from Barry Moran and Fred Miller and Mark Freidinger scored 12 points each. Springfield's next high man to Robisch was Mark Stoddard with eight points.

Big Ten Rejects Illinois Appeal

Given Until Tuesday To Fire Coaches

CHICAGO (AP) — The Big Ten faculty representatives Saturday gave the University of Illinois until next Tuesday to fire three coaches involved in the $21,000 slush fund scandal, or be indefinitely suspended from the conference.

The faculty representatives earlier in the day heard a three-hour final appeal by Dr. David Henry, Illinois president.

But in announcing the deadline for firing the coaches, the faculty men said Illinois "did not sufficiently show cause" under provisions of the Big Ten code why the three involved coaches should not be dismissed.

Dr. Henry, who had steadfastly backed the three coaches—head football Coach Pete Elliott, head basketball Coach Harry Combes and assistant basketball Coach Howie Braun—made a crisp "no comment" to newsmen as the faculty group's decision was announced.

The action was the final conference deliberation on the slush fund scandal which was exposed by Dr. Henry last December 16 upon information given by Mel Brewer, then assistant athletic director.

Marcus Plant, Michigan's faculty representative and also president of NCAA, made the announcement at a crowded news conference. Plant said:

"Having weighed carefully the seriousness of the infractions involved and all of the information of record, including that furnished by the University of Illinois, the faculty representatives have decided that the University of Illinois did not sufficiently show cause under the provisions of the Big Ten Code."

"Therefore, if after March 21 (Tuesday) Coaches Peter Elliott, Harry Combes and Howie Braun, or any one of them, be retained in positions in the coaching of any sport in the intercollegiate athletic program or in the directions or administration of intercollegiate athletics at the University of Illinois, the membership of the University of Illinois in Intercollegiate Conference of Faculty Representatives (Big Ten) shall be suspended indefinitely as of that date."

"In taking this action the faculty representatives are mindful of the honored position of the University of Illinois in the long history of the conference and are hopeful that this association will continue."

Plant proclaimed the suspension as follows:

"During a period of membership suspension, if it should exist, the status of the University of Illinois would be the same as any other non-conference institution. As against termination, suspension carries with it the possibility of reinstatement."

The three coaches could remain in the Physical Education Department but could not have any connection on the intercollegiate staff.

Plant said if Illinois retains the coaches, it could petition for reinstatement, but that such a petition would have to be a matter of restudy and review by faculty representatives. However, the university would be under suspension while the petition was being reviewed.

Plant said that vote for Saturday's action was not unanimous with eight representatives approving, one disapproving and Illinois abstaining.

The dissenting school was reported to be Ohio State.

Plant said Dr. Henry had indicated he would make no public comment until he consults with two faculty groups at Illinois—the Senate Committee and the Athletic Association's Board of Directors.

Plant declined to say whether Dr. Henry offered a compromise such as suspension rather than firing the coaches or foregoing participation in television revenue or the Rose Bowl Game.

However, Dr. Henry did repeat an offer he made at a March 3 meeting of the conference faculty group, Plant said.

This included a period of membership probation during which Illinois would be barred from post-season games and receipts from such games.

"I'll say this, that in Dr. Henry's three-hour presentation we had a very thorough discussion, but I wouldn't want to say what portions involved any new Illinois proposals," Plant said.

Plant said that vote for Saturday's action was not unanimous, with eight representatives approving, one disapproving and Illinois abstaining.

The dissenting school was reported to be Ohio State.

Dayton Squeezes Past Va. Tech

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Dayton's tourney-seasoned Flyers pumped in seven points in overtime to grab a 71-66 victory from underdog Virginia Tech in the title game of the NCAA's Midwest Regional basketball tourney Saturday night.

The Flyers were led by Don May's 28 points and needed a strong finish to tie at 64-64 at the end of regulation time.

They will face North Carolina, Eastern Regional champ, in the NCAA finals at Louisville next Friday.

Regulation time ended in the 64-64 deadlock after Don May scored five free throws in a Dayton spurt which almost erased a 65-52 Tech lead. Then Glinder Torain tied it for Dayton on a free throw with 1:48 left.

The Gobblers made the mistake of trying to stall for a final shot and a jump ball was called because of failure to move the ball with 22 seconds left.

Dayton got the jump and called time with 17 seconds left, but Bob Hooper's side shot missed for the Flyers with six seconds left and the overtime resulted at 64-64.

Indiana's Hoosiers came on strong in the second half to score a 51-44 victory over Tennessee and nail down the third slot.

The triumph, witnessed by about 7,500 persons in Evansville's McGraw Memorial Hall, brought the season Hoosier mark to 18-8. Tennessee, which lost out 53-52 to Dayton on Friday night, ended its season with a 21-7 record.

The Vols, paced by captain Ron Widby, forced Indiana into a sustained stall late in the first half and the two teams left the floor tied at 21-21.

The game finally went Indiana's way when Bill Russell scored six points in an eight-point Hoosier flurry. The rally enabled the Crimson to go ahead 35-30 with nine minutes left.

The Vols, unable to hit from outside, were forced into a series of bad shots.

COMBES SILENT AFTER FINAL ILLINI APPEAL REJECTED

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Harry Combes, 20-season head basketball coach at the University of Illinois, declined comment on final action by the Big Ten Saturday ordering his dismissal and that of two other Illini coaches.

Reached at his home, Combes told the Associated Press:

"I don't feel I can say anything until I talk with the university officials."

Head football Coach Pete Elliott and assistant basketball Coach Howie Braun, also affected by the Big Ten action, were not available for immediate comment.

Combes said he holds tenure in the department of physical education and is qualified to teach in college.

"Whether I would remain at Illinois in another capacity if I am able, I don't know," said Combes. "I haven't given the thought of resignation or talked about it with my wife."

When the Illini scandal broke last December, Combes offered his resignation which was not accepted. However, Combes and Elliott were placed on one-year's probation by Illinois and banned from personal contact recruiting.

Combes Handcuffed By Funds Scandal

CHAMPAIGN (AP) — Basketball talent that would make most college coaches drool was performing within 100 feet of his office, but coach Harry Combes couldn't do anything about it.

"It's frustrating," the University of Illinois mentor said Saturday as four teams opened semifinal action of the Illinois High School Basketball Tournament.

Because of recent disclosures of a $21,000 "slush fund" for athletes, the Big Ten had called for the U. of I. to fire Combes, his assistant, Howie Braun, and head football Coach Pete Elliott.

Combes, barred by the university along with Elliott from recruiting for one year, was reluctant even to discuss outstanding prospects — a subject he relished in ordinary times.

"I think you'd better talk to Howie," the dejected Combes said. "I'd rather not take any chances."

Braun, weighing his words carefully, said he preferred not to list the usual number of boys Illinois was seeking because it could interest other schools in the same players.

Mac Third In Indoor Track Meet

MACOMB — MacMurray third place in the annual NAIA District 20 Indoor Track Championships Meet held at Western Illinois University.

Host Western won top honors followed by Eastern Illinois with a distant 48.

Art Hammon, Jim McGinnis and Dennis Mueller were the top point-getters for the Highlanders, as each notched high positions in two events.

Hammon placed second in the 60-yard low hurdles and fourth in the 60-yard high.

Carlin Whitaker of Jacksonville, a Western Illinois standout, won the event with a time of :07.2.

McGinnis' points came on third place finishes in the mile and 1,000 yard events, while Mueller captured a fourth in the two mile and a fifth in the one mile runs.

Rich Pincus netted the Clan's highest place of the day with a second in the 60 yard dash. Jim Samuel's 5th in the two mile, a fifth in the 880 yard run by Rich Williams and a fourth in the 1,000 yard run by Mark Matraena completed the MacMurray scoring.

Trailing the Highlanders in the point count were: Lewis 20, Illinois Wesleyan 17, Millikin 10, Greenville 7, and Rockford 3.

MILWAUKEE LINCOLN TAKES WISCONSIN BASKETBALL TITLE

MADISON (AP)—Milwaukee Lincoln withstood a furious last half lunge by Wausau to defeat the Lumberjacks 65-56 for the Comets' second straight Wisconsin High School Basketball Championship. It was also the Comets' fifth crown in the past nine seasons.

The Lumberjacks closed to within three points with 50 seconds left, but the ball was lost to Lincoln, which clinched the title on a rebound bucket by Tom Williams.

The Comets stalled out a good part of the fourth quarter with Clarence Sherrod dribbling the minutes away.

Sherrod led the Comets with 17 points. Pat Roeder paced a-sau with 16 markers.

Lincoln's three-game total of 250 points was a tournament record, breaking a mark of 249 set by Waukeeshia in 1961.

CONIGLIARO BREAKS SHOULDER BLADE

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP)—Boston Red Sox slugger Tony Conigliaro suffered a broken left shoulder blade Saturday when he was hit by a pitch during batting practice.

Johnny Wyatt, a hard-throwing relief pitcher, hit Conigliaro on the back of the left shoulder while the club was taking hitting practice prior to an exhibition game with the Detroit Tigers in nearby Lakeland.

Early indications were that the 1965 American League home run champion would be sidelined for two weeks. The injury was described as a hairline fracture by Red Sox trainer Buddy LeRoux.

Top Marquette 71-56 On Strong 2nd Half

NEW YORK (AP)—Walt Frazier touched off a Southern Illinois point explosion midway in the second half and the streaking Salukis crushed Marquette 71-56 Saturday for the National Invitation Tournament championship.

Bob Lloyd poured in 44 points, broke a tournament scoring record and led Rutgers to a 93-76 victory over Marshall in the game for third place.

Southern Illinois, the nation's No. 1 college-division team, overcame an 11-point halftime deficit and surged to its 19th straight victory in taking the NIT crown on its first trip to the 30-year-old postseason basketball classic.

Frazier, the Salukis' 6-foot-3 Little All-America, whose 21 points topped all scorers in the final game, hit a free throw and a jump shot with less than 13 minutes remaining and SIU, which had trailed 34-23 at the half, outscored the Warriors 24-4 in the next 6 1/2 minutes.

Moments after the game, Frazier, a junior, was voted the most valuable player in the tournament by sportswriters covering the prestigious event.

Ralph Johnson, who scored all his seven points after halftime, and Roger Bechtold, one of the Salukis' smooth reserves teamed with Frazier in an 14-2 binge that sent SIU ahead 49-44 with 6:50 remaining. It was the Salukis' first lead since the second minute of the game.

After Brian Brunhorst drove for a Marquette basket, the Salukis reeled off 10 straight points for a 59-46 bulge and coolly rattled the Warriors' full-court press in the final minutes to complete their four-game tourney sweep and finish the season with a 24-2 record.

The Warriors broke ahead early in the first half behind the deadly jump shooting of Bob Wolf. Wolf missed his first two shots, then made five in a row. He dropped in his first two attempts in the second half for a run of seven straight.

Clarence Smith scored 13 for the Salukis, Dick Garrett added 12 and Bechtold 10. Jim Burke, Wolf's backcourt partner, hit 15 for the Warriors, who finished 21-9 for the season.

Trying for his first tournament title in two years, Jacksonville's only touring pro birdied five of the first eight holes in a blazing start on the par-72 Deerwood Club course of which he is a member.

Sikes faltered on the back nine, however, and lost half of an early six-stroke margin. The 36-year-old lawyer took a double-bogey six on the 10th hole when he drove into a lake on a costly gamble with the wind. He also bogeyed the 16th and 17th holes.

His 54-hole total of 206 was 10 strokes under par and three shots better than the 209 built up by Gay Brewer Jr., 1966 Jacksonville runner-up who had an erratic 71. The Dallas, Tex., veteran salvaged a sub-par round and held second place despite a slump in which he bogeyed the 8th, 9th and 10th holes.

"The wind was terrific," Brewer said. "I didn't mind the cold, but the wind was even worse than it was in the opening round."

Goalby, who scored a hole-in-one in the second round, turned in a 71 and Courtney shrugged off the wind and shot a 69, one of only three sub-70 scores turned in.

Temperatures in the 50s and winds gusting up to 25 miles an hour spoilt the day for most of the golfers, with only nine players breaking par.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Big Bob Ford scored 29 points and fired underdog Evansville North to a 60-58 victory over favorite Lafayette in the championship game of the Indiana High School Basketball Tournament Saturday night.

Ford broke the eight-year-old scoring record for the last four games of the tourney with a total of 130 points. Jimmy Rayl of Kokomo had set a record at 114 points in 1959.

The hard-earned victory for the Huskies denied Coach Marion Crawley a fifth title and Lafayette a fourth. North won for the first time.

The Huskies broke out of a 50-50 tie at the start of the fourth period as Ron Jesop hit from the foul lane. Ford got three field goals against one for Lafayette's Mark Strader, and the North was in charge at 58-52.

North had reached the final game by beating New Castle 66-56 in the afternoon. Lafayette advanced on a 79-70 win over Fort Wayne South.

The Brocos fought back to within two points on a field goal by Erik Jacobson with 23 seconds left. The game was a long, long shot by Jacobson at the horn.

Cards Hoping Changes Will Bring More Runs

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Mike Shannon's shift to third base is the key move in the St. Louis Cardinals' hopes of squeezing more power out of a line-up that will include Roger Maris and Orlando Cepeda.

The Cardinals were 10th in runs scored last season, a discouraging statistic that prompted a pair of off-season deals. In order to get another left-handed hitter in the line-up, Maris was acquired from the New York Yankees.

To give Tim Lincecum a chance to rest against southpaws, catcher Johnny Romano was obtained from the Chicago White Sox.

"I am very encouraged by what I have seen of Shannon at third base so far," said Manager Red Schoendienst. "He will make some mistakes but who doesn't? It will take him a while to get used to the new job but I will be very disappointed if he does not make it."

Shannon was the second-best hitter on the club last year with his .288 average and 16 home runs. Only Cepeda's .301 and 20 homers were better.

The ability of Maris to bounce back after two consecutive disappointing injury-plagued years with the Yankees is important to the Cards. Nobody expects any 61 home runs like the great year of 1961 but just an ordinary Maris season, like 1964 when he hit .281, hammered 26 homers and drove in 71 runs would be more than enough.

If Maris fails to come through, Schoendienst will probably play Alex Johnson (.355 at Tulsa) and Bob Toland (.333 at Tulsa) in right. Johnson, acquired from the Phillies a year ago in the big deal involving Dick Groat and Bill White, may plateau with Maris.

Lou Brock (.285 and 14 homers) is the left fielder and defending stolen base champion with 74. He is a speedy leadoff man with power, an unusual combination.

Curt Flood (.267), of course, is the center fielder. There are many who consider the slim 5-foot-9, 160-pounder the best in all baseball at this stage, even better than Willie Mays.

Schoendienst's infield is set, except for third base. Cepeda, who batted .286 as a Giant and .303 as a Card after his May 8 trade, will be available for the entire season.

Julian Javier (.228) is the second baseman and Dal Maxvill (.244) blossomed out as the regular shortstop last year. If Shannon does not make it at third, the Redhead will have to work something out with Ed Spiezio (.301 at Tulsa), Jerry Buchek (.236) or Phil Gagliano (.254). There have been recurrent rumors all spring that either Buchek or Gagliano is headed for the Mets.

Pitching is the Cards' real strength with a staff led by Bob Gibson (.21-12), despite missing five starts due to a strained elbow. Gibson, hero of the 1964 world champs, pitched 20 complete games and had the best earned run average (.244) of any Card.

Ray Washburn (11-9) has come back strong from his shoulder injury of 1963 and ex-Met lefty Al Jackson (13-15) has become a Card ace despite the loss of many low score games.

Larry Jaster (11-5), the lefty who shut out the Dodgers five straight times, heads the youth contingent that also includes Steve Carlton (3-3) Nelson Briles (4-15) and Dick Hughes (2-1) with the Cards after compiling a 12-8 record in the minors.

Chicago defeated Philadelphia, 26 to 23, to establish a major league record for most runs by both teams in a National League baseball game on Aug. 12, 1922.

Bumper Crops - Maybe

If the weather obliges, this year may see one of the most bountiful harvests in the nation's history. A Wall Street Journal survey indicates that farmers plan to boost their total acreage in major crops this year, partly because of the government's relaxing of acreage allotments.

It is anticipated that nearly 320 million acres will be planted this year, close to the 1960 figure. This, plus the increased yields due to improved farming techniques, has led Wall Street Journal experts to predict a rise in the all-crop index to 120 per cent of the 1957 - 1959 average.

Predictions about farm output are trickier than most, however. Wheat production, for example, may not rise as anticipated. Winter wheat, which is planted in the fall, comprises almost 80 per cent of the total U.S. wheat crop. The dry fall and prolonged winter threaten to greatly reduce yields. If rain fails to come soon, wheat production in such states as Kansas will decline with each day of dry weather. But if the rains do come soon and if summer rainfall is normal, a record 1.6 billion bushels of wheat—25 per cent more than in 1966—may be harvested.

Soybean acreage, which has risen annually for the past eight years, may reach 39 million acres in 1967. An expected rise in corn acreage is particularly significant because, since corn accounts for close to 60 per cent of the total feed grain acreage, a big crop could end the recent decline in feed grain stocks.

To sum up, the experts foresee heavier plantings of wheat, corn, soybeans and sorghum. Thus a bumper harvest of major crops may be in prospect. But it must be kept in mind that, as always, this depends in large measure on such variables as weather and insects. These are what play hob with agricultural forecasts.

Sad Day In France

It was a sad occasion when, at command headquarters near Paris, the American and French flags were slowly lowered in unison to signalize the withdrawal of United States forces from France. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, the Allied supreme commander, spoke of it as "a most sentimental occasion," but the sentiment was not joyous. For many who were present, for millions among the people of both countries, a sense of regret and loss marked this ceremony.

The American military presence had been a shield for France during many years of the cold war. There were echoes, too, of our country's unstinting help to a beleaguered France in two world wars. In his farewell remarks, General Lemnitzer expressed confidence "that the long-standing Franco - American friendship and mutual respect which has been maintained for nearly two centuries will continue to prevail." We share that confidence. But it was a sad day, nonetheless, when finis was written to an eventual chapter in the two countries' relationship.

Favorable Impact On West's GOP Romney—Own Best Salesman

By BRUCE BOSSAT

Washington Correspondent

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Several

western Republican leaders who were cool to Michigan Gov.

George Romney's representatives at a recent party meeting in

New Orleans are described by knowledgeable sources as having been "very warm" to toward Romney himself on his 8-

300-mile western swing.

Traditional western hospitality should perhaps discount some of the change. But checks with party men in the states he visited—Washington, Alaska, Utah,

Idaho, New Mexico and Arizona

—indicate that the governor's personal impact in closed-door political conferences along the way produced a sizable gain for him.

Possibly the most interesting aspect of his trip as viewed at the strategy level is the evident fact that he was almost exclusively his own spokesman in

leaders.

Asked for a report on how Romney was doing with these leaders, one of the governor's ideas confessed he had no real idea, that neither he nor others of Romney's staff were sitting in.

The governor is still regarded in many quarters as a political novice. But it is plain he does not see it that way. Coming off his experience as a governor, a civic leader and a corporation executive, he has immense confidence in his hand-on-the-arm, pierce-you-with-clear-blue-eyes tactic of persuasion.

The night Romney landed in support Barry Goldwater in 1964. A detached observer who was there says his forthright argument scored some points with conservative listeners.

He had little persuasive work to do in heavily Mormon Utah, where state leaders say flatly

he would be the biggest boost, as 1968 Republican presidential nominee, that state and local

GOP tickets could have.

In Idaho, the arch conservative newcomer, Gov. Donald Samuelson, is widely viewed as frosty toward Romney. Yet

Romney is said to believe he broke through the ice crust. He had two long private chats with

the other in the governor's car on a 50-mile ride to that city.

One Idaho Republican, stressing that sentiment for Richard

Nixon is very strong in Idaho today, nevertheless said that many pro-Nixon party men have a "haunting fear" that the former vice president is a loser.

Not alone in Idaho but also elsewhere on his western tour,

Romney in private talks with leaders is reported to have heard this worry expressed often—by politicians who told him that in 1968 they want a winner.

Just as he did in his long round of public appearances,

the Michigan governor dwelled in these private meetings on his essential conservatism, his freedom from bonds to the so-called

"eastern establishment" despite eastern moderates' espousal of his presidential cause.

The case of Edwin Mechem,

New Mexico's conservative national committeeman, is interesting. He shunned an airport reception for Romney in Albuquerque, but took in his Lincoln

Day speech with its recurring stress on the failure of "federal answers — to many major domestic problems.

Mechem is reported to have talked warmly with the governor afterwards, and indicated strong approval of these utterances.

Arizona, Goldwater country, was probably the governor's thinnest going. Yet even here,

Gov. John Williams, mindful of sizable colonies of Mormon voters, gave Romney the notion he is, in Romney's words, "very cows.

The evasion of disaster is the lifetime profession of some people. I have a friend who refuses to listen to the radio broadcasts in the morning or late evening because there is too much recounting of tragedies, murders, and traffic accidents. He believes that this is no way to begin or to end the day.

There is another acquaintance who simply refuses to visit a hospital. He can't stand to confront all of that pain and discomfort.

During a recent debate in our

a university campus, one citizen stated publicly, "What can you do about a city except avoid it?"

Yet it's a delusion to try to avoid death, pain or a city. It's a pretense to try to live life so that it is only an insulation from pain.

Thomas Merion insists, "The fact of death is not merely the closing of all possibilities, the negation of choice and hope. I am not free to make what I like out of life that must end in death. To pretend to live as if I could not be touched by death is not a rational and human use of freedom. Such freedom is actually without any meaning at all. It is a delusion."

Those who live honestly cannot be satisfied with a delusion.

They don't escape tensions but they do escape pretense. They can face death, knowing that it is better to confront life and death rather than to run from it. So Jesus went up into the city. So a martyr decides that his witness is not to retreat. So

The search for independence that has swept all Africa in the past decade has reached French Somaliland, prompting the call for the March 19 vote on whether or not to join neighboring Somali Republic. Somali Republic was previously divided into two parts—protectorates of Britain and Italy. The Italian protectorate later became a sovereign state under United Nations trusteeship and, in 1960, the two united as a republic.

Baptists Gamble Dot To Touch Tots' Hearts

By MIKE COCHRAN
FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—He's a dot named Jot, and the Southern Baptists are gambling that he'll touch the minds, hearts and personalities of millions of children.

They've already plunged $200,000 into the spiritual pot, and that's only a starter. Jot is the key figure in a series of animated cartoons being produced in Fort Worth by the Southern Baptists' Radio-Television Commission.

The five-minute color presentations are designed to carry nonsectarian messages, not necessarily Biblical, to children ranging in age from 5 to 10. Based on Biblical principles, they draw moral or spiritual conclusions.

The adventures of Jot are being offered free to television stations and are expected to make their first appearances in the fall.

The Rev. Ed. Shipman, spokesman for the commission, said finances pose the only restriction.

"We could be on 400 or 500 stations simultaneously," he said. "But we just don't have the money."

The commission estimates that the production, six years in the planning stage, will eventually cost between $100,000 and $150,000 annually. Each episode costs from $5,000 to $15,000.

Kurt Byers, director of the Dallas Children's Theater, writes and produces the show, aided by a Dallas production firm.

"This is a tremendously expensive venture, but one so significant we feel we had to go ahead, no matter what the cost," said the Rev. Mr. Shipman.

Jot is a white dot which sprouts arms and legs, flies, sings, runs and jumps and performs a wide variety of animated duties, speaks with the voice of a small boy.

"Jot represents the child personality most characteristic of the greater moral and spiritual community in America," the Rev. Mr. Shipman said.

"His problems and experiences lead him to a realization of the importance of a right relationship with God, with himself and with his fellow man."

The new approach was conceived several years ago by Dr. Paul M. Stevens, director of the Radio-Television Commission.

ELECTION TIME

By John Rankin

There was just a trace of springlike weather in the air and the schoolyard was showing green under a bright sun. And as Billy got on his bicycle and started across town for home a light breeze that was soft and refreshing added a touch of early spring to the day. Even the birds singing in the vines and shrubs growing along the tree-lined street seemed to speak of balmy springtime.

The upcoming primary election was close at hand and pictures of office seekers of the two major political parties appeared on billboards and on posters tacked on trees and other suitable places. In addition trucks using loudspeakers toured the town proclaiming the merits and qualifications of various candidates.

Finding little interest in such things as politics, Billy threaded his bicycle through the heavy traffic and hurried on home. He tossed the light jacket he was wearing in the general direction of a chair as he breezed through the living room and went on through the house to the kitchen. "Hi, Mom, when do we eat?" he asked with a boyish eagerness as his mother turned from the stove.

She gave him a permissive smile. "Supper is about ready, dear, but your father isn't home from the office yet, and Gramps

Life's Passing Scenes

By Mary Pence Claywell

By Mary Pence Claywell The Light of the dawn is breaking, And whisper, "I'm going to win." And not far away, another scene, One struggles with sin and woe, Too proud, to admit an error, Or notice THE ROSY GLOW: THE FINAL SCENE, Lord, is SORROW, One stands by a window there, Asking Thee, Lord, for BLESSINGS, And, IF WILLING, to lift all cares:

On and on, we could go, Lord, To millions of other scenes, Of JOY, and SIN, and DEATH, and WOE, SUCCESS, and BROKEN DREAMS: But THE SCENE THAT KEEPS US GOING, IN GLADNESS, OR SORROW, OR STRIFE, IN HEARTACHES, or when we are WEARY, Or something IS RUINING our LIVES, Is THE VISION of THEE, LORD, Standing In the Rosy Glow of The East Thy Hands Outstretched, and Saying, "COME, AND I'LL GIVE THEE PEACE!" An assistant surveyor named George Washington, age 17, in 1749 helped lay out the streets of Alexandria, Va., a new port on the Potomac River.

LUCK OF THE IRISH

Let's Go Birding

The Answer

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Part 2: St. Patrick's Day Patricia is Irish so she puts touches of green in her outfit as she get ready for school. Then just because it is a special day she puts on the tulip earrings that are so precious because they are the last gift from Jim. She remembered vividly the day they had come. About ten the mailman rang the door bell and brought her little earrings from Jim. They were beautiful! Where Jim had got the earrings she did not know. How could he, where could he have bought them in such an ugly, poor, place as he was in? Vietnam doesn't have little tulip earrings she thought. "Oh, good grief!" she cried, coming back from yesterday to today.

She hurried off and as she rushed down the stairs she did not hear the little plink one of her tulips made as it fell to the bottom of the stair well.

Yes, it was on that very same day that her tulips came, that the telegram came. It was the very same day. It was short and to the point. All it said was that Jim was killed in action. She had been out of school for a week mourning.

She arrived at school and got through her first hour history test and second hour English class fine. But during her third hour class she decided to check to see if her earrings were still safely on her ears.

Yes, there is the right one. The left, where is the left? Oh, it's here somewhere. The left! The left! She panicked and began feeling all around her ear and through her long brown hair. But, it was not to be found! She studied the floor and surroundings critically. She was dismissed to go to the restroom and checked there and retraced her exact steps that she had taken since she had first arrived.

Helplessly, with her face turning paler every minute she returned to her class. Shaking and nervous she entered her home ec class. Then, suddenly she felt sick again. She felt just as she had felt when she first woke up.

After her third hour class she went to the lost and found but her earring was not found. She even had it announced over the speaker and offered a dollar as a reward.

But, at the end of the school day she had not found it. She opened her purse sadly and removed the remaining tulip. One lip left. Yes, this was the story. Jim was dead and she was left and so were her sad lips. Nervously she returned it to its safe place inside her purse. She could feel the tension and tears waiting in her eyes.

"Don't cry here," she warned herself.

She left school and just a block away her cup was spilled. Down the street she walked. How stupid she thought she looked, but no matter how hard she tried she couldn't stop.

Finally, she found her way home. Crying, she ran into her mother's arms telling her of the misfortune. Last year on St. Patrick's Day and now this. "Hey, Mom! Look what I found, one of Patricia's earrings," said her ten year old brother.

"What?" screamed Patricia joyfully. "My earring! My tulip!"

Then she knew that this was the luck of the Irish as she remembered that today was the seventeenth.

Does anyone have a comment, question, or suggestion? If you do why not send them to me?

SURVIVING A VACUUM

By Walter B. Hendrickson, Jr.

Tests conducted by the Air Force and National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) at Holloman AFB, New Mexico indicate that an astronaut may be able to survive one of the most severe hazards of space flight — the sudden loss of air pressure in his spacecraft or spacesuit.

These experiments have been going on since 1964 using some 18 specially trained chimpanzees. In the picture above, veterinarians and medical technicians of the Aeromedical Research Laboratory at Holloman AFB, N.M., prepare a chimpanzee for rapid decompression to the near vacuum of 150,000 feet for three and a half minutes in this pressure chamber. After a four-hour recovery period, the chimpanzees have no noticeable residual effects and can operate their light puzzle with on long-lasting changes in their performance.

All the animals are handled in accordance with the "Principles of Laboratory Animal Care," set up by the National Society for medical Research.

Basic Questions The experiments sought the answers to these basic questions on escape from a vacuum in space:

Can a healthy, unprotected specimen survive the rapid loss of air pressure, and for how long?

How useful will he be afterwards?

How long will it be before he blacks out?

How long will it take him to recover after blackout?

And how long will it take him to return to normal?

Chimps Work Puzzle

Chimps around six years of age from the Holloman chimpanzee colony were used in the tests. They were trained to operate a puzzle of lights on a schedule of 22 minutes with a break of 13 minutes in the middle. This training took eight weeks, the last one spent in 2 1/2 by 4 by 4 foot chamber built by General electric, with a built-in observation window.

The chamber atmosphere was 100 percent oxygen with a temperature of 75 degrees and a humidity of 30%. The tests began at a simulated altitude of 35,000 feet and went up to about 150,000 feet for five seconds to 3 1/2 minutes then back down to 35,000 feet for 24 hours.

The tests proved that there is a direct relation between the time spent at a simulated 150,000 feet and the time it took the chimp to recover. The time before blackout varied from animal to animal. Some lasted only 3.6 seconds while others remained conscious for nearly a minute.

TRIANGULAR STAMPS

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Author's note: A "Local Post" resort island. Some one must go to the mainland Post Office to pick up mail from and to Rattlesnake Island. The triangular stamps shown above are used for this purpose. In the mid-1800s Wells Fargo received mail under this permit.

Local Post

A lumpy little island of eighty-four acres glowered at others of its group, Lake Erie and Port Clinton, Ohio, twelve miles distant. "Why can't I have Air Mail, the other islands do." But Rattlesnake, named for its appearance long ago, was denied mail service although it had some forty summer vacationers at its cabins and lodge, yet for eight months in the year only a caretaker and his wife were in residence, for the owners of the resort island. Some one must go to the mainland Post Office to pick up mail from and to Rattlesnake Island. The triangular stamps shown above are used for this purpose. In the mid-1800s Wells Fargo received mail under this permit.

By Title 18 of U.S. Code, such an arrangement was legal and adopted by the owners. A five cent grey and red with an island map, a ten cent green with air plane landing at Rattlesnake, and a twenty five cent blue island scene were provided. In August mail moved satisfactorily for the forty vacationers.

But on Dec. 9, 1966, a Post Office order closed the modest new office, objecting to the stamps approved earlier in the year. They could be too easily confused with regular U.S. postage. Disappointment ran high until a suggestion solved the trouble. Rattlesnake could have its own Local Post, if the stamps were not rectangles. Triangular stamps were evolved from the original designs, colors, and denominations. A first day cover date was announced for January 23, 1967. Orders piled upon piles, Mrs. Charles Busch the Postmistress, and her husband, the caretaker, were overwhelmed, 14,000 black with "Don't Tread on Me," above a coiled rattlesnake, beneath ran the words, "Rattlesnake Island, Jan. 23, 1967, Local Post."

When the last laundry sack of mail was stowed on the Tri-motored Airplane and carried aloft, Island owners, visiting TV officials and Newspaper representatives from Akron, Ohio, gathered with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Busch about a new flagpole at the Lodge, where Mr. Busch pulled up the Island's flag, a yellow field printed in black with "Don't Tread on Me," above a coiled rattlesnake, beneath ran the words, "Rattlesnake Island."

Religion Today

By HUBERT J. ERB
WITTENBERG, East Germany (AP) — The gray-haired sexton picked up a wreath from another tomb and placed it in front of the stone beneath which Martin Luther lies buried in Wittenberg's castle church.

"It will look better for the picture," the sexton said. His concern was for an image of respect for one of Germany's most famous sons.

Luther, then a Roman Catholic Augustinian monk, nailed on the north door of the castle church the 95 theses that sparked the Protestant Reformation. That was Oct. 31, 1517.

Communist East Germany, where the old university town of Wittenberg now is located, plans to celebrate the 450th anniversary of Luther's deed and the Reformation in officially separate Church-state observances. Like the old man with the wreath before Luther's tomb, each side is concerned with the image of Luther it wants reflected.

The Church will emphasize the theological aspects of Luther and his scholarly career. Said one Western churchman concerned with the celebrations, "There is no doubt that the (East German) state will try to make of Martin Luther a sociological figure, a fighter for the people, a first revolutionary, and so forth. They will pull out all propaganda stops to seek advantage for their side."

Such an attempt, the churchman added, would clash with the generally accepted view of Luther's political conservatism. It also would clash with some things the Communists themselves have said in the past. An East German encyclopedia, for example, states that "in the Peasants' War he (Luther) condemned their revolt (and) placed himself on the side of the feudal lords."

The East German government plans a celebration and reception on Oct. 30 in Wittenberg and a street procession the afternoon of the 31st, capped by fireworks at night. The Church will have an ecumenical celebration on the 30th and church services on the morning of "Reformation Day," the 31st.

Michael Krille, secretary of a Church anniversary committee in East Berlin, said that the separate celebrations were designed "to avoid the appearance of a head-on clash between Church and state over Luther observances, as happened in Poland during last year's church-state millennium celebrations."

It is clear, however, the state observances could overshadow those of the Church.

There already is an apparent conflict within the all-German aspect of the celebration. Oskar Thulin, 67, director of the Luther Hall (museum) in Wittenberg, declared in an interview: "In the present state of tension, it now looks like West German travel groups will not get permission to attend the Reformation celebrations. At least 100,000 such visitors will be lost if permission to come is not granted."

the East German authorities would relent.

For his part, Krille said that "it is questionable if the permission will be granted for the travel groups." An official West German delegation would be represented, he added, but although a host of names had been proposed he did not know how many or who would be approved.

According to Krille, about 40,000 foreign visitors are expected, among them 8,000-to-10,000 Americans. There are plans to shuttle visitors back and forth from as far away as Leipzig, 65 miles from Wittenberg.

Visitors will have the opportunity to tour the "Luther cities" — Wittenberg; Eisleben, where he was born and died; Erfurt, where he studied, and the Wartburg, where he translated the New Testament into German.

Wittenberg is a picturesque city with a Medieval city center, although like many East German cities it lacks attention because of a shortage of manpower for such things as street cleaning. It also lacks hotel space. There are only four small hotels, two of them being renovated.

The castle church has a striking interior and is in good repair except for broken windows in its 250-foot tower. For the Western visitor a curiosity is signs in the church and tower that read, "Ne kupti," no smoking, in Russian.

The Reformation celebration is one of three being planned in East Germany this year. The other two involve the Wartburg fortress, which will celebrate its 900th anniversary, and the 150th anniversary of the Burschenschaft, or German National Student Associations.

It was at a Wartburg meeting in October, 1817, that the Burschenschaft called for German unity and where they displayed for the first time as a national symbol a black, red and gold flag. These flag colors now are being used by both West and East Germany. The Communists have added a hammer and sickle emblem in the center.

Illinois Water Pollution

Expect 20-Foot Suds In Creek

By ROBERT GOLDENSTEIN
CHICAGO (AP)—Suds of detergents boiled up to a height of 5 feet in Yellow Creek at Freeport during a recent temporary thaw and are expected to rise as high as 20 feet when full spring warmth arrives.

Near Bloomington-Normal, a corporation which makes paper from cotton linters has been discharging dark reddish brown water waste into Sugar Creek. Board last July banned any sewer extensions in Galesburg, an action city officials said effectively halts any major growth in Galesburg. The board based its action on pollution of Cedar Creek, southwest of the city.

Illinois has the essential ingredients that can cause water pollution—heavy industry, large population and intensified agriculture. Each is causing problems. Yet pollution experts believe the state generally has the means to cope with the problem and eventually can apply adequate controls.

"Our current problem is not one primarily of abatement, but of control to assure that the facilities already built are properly operated," said Clarence W. Klassen, technical secretary of the Illinois Sanitary Water Board.

"There are approximately 1,600 sewage treatment plants in the state which are providing treatment for 99.7 per cent of the population which contributes to sewage problems (urban population)."

"The current problem in Illinois is now to upgrade the degree of treatment in all streams to meet the new state water standards that the state Sanitary Water Board has adopted in conformance with the federal Clean Water Act."

Klassen said the most acute water pollution problems in Downstate Illinois are in such mining areas as Harrisburg and Carbondale. Acid water seeps out of abandoned mines during rainfall, polluting streams, he added.

"We have no interstate problem that Illinois is creating," Klassen said. "On the Mississippi River we have only one town of 2,000 population that doesn't have a sewage plant or one under construction. The Ohio River on the southern border is completely cleaned up and so is the Wabash River and Lake Michigan."

One continuing problem is fish kills caused by industrial wastes, untreated or improperly treated municipal sewage, drainage from livestock feed lots, wastes from food processing plants and fertilizers draining from crop fields.

The Illinois Department of Conservation reported that an estimated 1.33 million fish were killed in Illinois streams in 1966 in 13 pollution cases investigated by fisher biologists. The pollution involved 80 miles of streams.

In 1965, at least 19 fish kills involving 90 miles of streams and 33 acres of impounded water were investigated. An estimated 444,300 fish perished.

A survey of the state showed these conditions:

UPPER ILLINOIS RIVER
H.W. Poston, regional program director for the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration, said he would not recommend swimming in the upper 55 miles of the Illinois River until sewage treatment is improved.

"It would be dangerous for anyone to swallow the water," he added.

ALTON AREA
In compliance with governmental regulations, most communities have constructed sewage treatment plants as a primary abatement step. Industrial waste is going into the streams, however, and although industry denies responsibility for pollution, periodic checks show the condition exists.

GALESBURG
During a check from April 1, 1965 to March 31, 1966 the state discovered that raw sewage was dumped into Cedar Creek during all but 32 days. A referendum will be held April 4 to remedy the problem with costs estimated around $6 million. The state said it will lift its ban on sewer extensions if financing of sewer improvements is assured.

MACOMB
Approximately a year ago an addition to Macomb's sewage disposal plant and an overhauling of the existing plant were completed and put into operation. However, complaints of pollution of the stream below the plant have continued to come from farmers.

The Illinois Sanitary Water Board informed the city that the majority of the problems stemmed from faulty operation in the past and lack of necessary maintenance.

BLOOMINGTON-NORMAL
The Sanitary District has just completed enlarging its treatment facilities which may or not clear up some of the periodic fish kills which have occurred in the past in Sugar Creek. In spite of increased treatment capacity, the district still has to bypass some sewage during heavy rains because storm and sanitary sewers are not separate.

FREEPORT
The city has been giving primary treatment to sewage and discharging the treated effluent into the Pecatonica River. Freeport is under state orders of provide secondary treatment and is working on a $2.46 million program to improve and expand the sewage treatment plant. An application will be made for federal aid. The city also is expanding its interceptor sewer system to eliminate many septic tanks.

KANKAKEE
The Illinois Sanitary Water Board has granted Kankakee additional time to prepare plans for expansion of a sewage treatment plant and halt pollution of the Kankakee River.

DECATUR
A major problem facing Decatur involves pollution of the Sangamon River below the Lake Decatur Dam. Waste from the city's sanitary district facility, not completely treated, combine with a slowly flowing river, especially in the summer time, to create a major problem downstream.

The proposed Oakley Dam and Reservoir above the present Lake Decatur has been planned to provide an increased flow of the Sangamon River downstream from the Lake Decatur Dam. This could improve the pollution situation downstream.

SPRINGFIELD
The city has a storm overflow problem from combined sewers. However, Springfield has under construction experimental treatment facilities which are expected to be operational by May or June.

A survey will be made this summer to find an answer to storm sewer overflows which occasionally kill fish in streams in the area.

Woman Russian Barber Tells Why She's Best

MOSCOW (AP) — This country's leading barber is a woman who says her aim is to make "Soviet men the handsomest in the world."

Tamara Motorina's customers wait up to four hours for one of her sculptured haircuts at the Petrovka 18 barbershop in downtown Moscow.

They include a cosmonaut, star hockey players, doctors, high ranking officers and academicians — the middle-aged as well as the Soviet smart young set.

Best in Competition

Mrs. Motorina, an attractive blonde divorcee, is one of the many women barbers in this country. She took first place at last year's biggest barbering competition against both women and men.

Barbering in general and Mrs. Motorina in particular have gotten favorable publicity lately. The profession is being rehabilitated after a long period of neglect.

Soviet Russia, a newspaper put out by the Central Committee of the Communist party, recently ran an article which proclaimed, "The overwhelming majority of people would like to be attractive. There is nothing illegal about that."

The newspaper, apparently for the first time, spoke respectfully about barbering and defended men's interest in having their hair cut well.

less workers with caps pulled down on their shaggy heads.

Soviet Russia said the desire to be attractive "is evidence of the growing living standard in our country." It called barbering an honorable branch of the national economy and urged better equipment and preparations, like lotions and hair sprays.

Mrs. Motorina was singled out as an example of what a barber should be. Readers were told customers go to her barbershop "to encounter art."

Every Hair in Place

Snipping away deftly on the head of a young doctor, Mrs. Motorina said her favorite haircut is short — close to the head with a part. She works mainly with a razor, disdaining mechanical clippers, and uses a special technique with dryer and spray to get every hair in place.

It costs the equivalent of $1.81, against 55 cents for a simple haircut.

A dozen other master barbers are employed at the Petrovka 18 shop, which has existed for almost a century. Famous basso Feodor Chaliapin used to get his hair cut there in prerevolutionary days.

It is an old-fashioned looking place, with chandeliers and engraved mirrors. Some of the wooden chairs were bought in the United States in the 19th century.

Votes Extremes

Mrs. Motorina, like the other barbers, is all for the modern look these days, but against extremes. She opposes the Beatle cut and other long-haired variations.

"A man should look like a man," she said. "His appearance should have dignity and elegance."

She doesn't care much for dyeing hair, which is done occasionally at the shop.

"I like men natural," Mrs. Motorina said, laughing.

She laughed again when asked why she had taken up barbering instead of hair-dressing for women.

"Men are silent and serious," she answered. "They appreciate the work more than women. And they want to be handsome."

'Benefits Beyond Imagination' Possible From EROS Satellite

By JIM STROTHMAN
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A new family of satellites is on the drawing boards and they could change the course of history.

They could help prevent natural disasters. They could eliminate wars born of starvation by helping provide food for two-thirds of the world's people now inadequately fed. They could help lift underdeveloped nations from poverty by locating unknown reserves of oil or valuable minerals.

They could help city planners solve problems like traffic and housing congestion, deficiencies in water supplies and inadequate recreation space. They might help overcome the pollution of air, water and land.

The first of the new spacecraft, called Earth Resources Observation Satellites — EROS, is planned to fly in 1969 under a $20-million program announced by the Interior Department.

Initially, EROS satellites are expected to carry unclassified scientific sensing devices designed primarily to help engineers learn how future spacecraft of this type should be built.

But before the full potential of EROS can be harvested, major problems must be hurdled — problems more political in nature than technical.

Scientists working on the project agree that this type of satellite must — to do its job properly — cover the earth's surface. And then must carry cameras and electronic devices so sensitive that a scientist can tell a wheat crop from an oat crop, healthy trees from unhealthy trees, a paper mill from a steel mill, a middle-class apartment building from a slum.

This means the cameras would be making observations over many sovereign nations. The issue of invasion of privacy could be raised by people living there.

To further complicate the issue, sensors which would do the best job are now classified. They were developed and perfected for purposes of military reconnaissance.

Scientists believe this psychological disadvantage can be overcome if the United States would publicly declare that all data from the satellites would be made available to responsible scientists throughout the world.

Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall named Dr. William T. Pecora, director of the Geological Survey, to head the EROS program.

"We visualize EROS as an evolutionary program," Pecora said, "beginning with television cameras flown in an orbit that will cover the entire surface of the earth repeatedly."

"What we have learned from photographs taken recently from orbiting spacecraft indicates that the lands can be examined, evaluated, and mapped, and the type and vigor of plants can be determined."

"Even population counts and measurements of daily fluctuations in the traffic flow of both people and vehicles seem to be within the capability of remote-sensing techniques," Pecora said.

Potential benefits from a satellite especially built to survey earth's resources are "beyond our imagination," said William A. Fischer, the Geological Survey's research coordinator for earth orbiting programs.

Fischer said the Geological Survey is looking at the idea of "cooperative funding," with other government agencies such as the Departments of Commerce and Agriculture.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which would probably be responsible for launching EROS satellites, is also interested. It sees the earth as a "proving ground" to test tools and techniques which can be used to study the moon and other planets. At least four unsolicited proposals have been made by industries wanting to build the satellite.

In operation, earth-studying spacecraft would use infrared and radar sensors to detect surface temperatures and temperature changes, wind patterns, rainy areas of the globe, the amount of moisture in the soil and snow, ice and cloud cover.

Radar sensors aboard satellites bounce beams off the earth, "illuminating" the target, then relay the data to earth stations. Each object on earth reflects, absorbs and re-emits this energy in a manner characteristic of the object's physical and molecular structure. Objects therefore have their own spectral "signature" which, when picked up by sensors, permits their identification.

Cameras use the same principle. They record electromagnetic energy radiated from sun and bounced off the object on earth.

Tone contrasts in photographs can tell an expert the difference between a wheat and an oat crop, for example, or the healthy and unhealthy trees.

For population studies, "it seems to be technically feasible to observe individual fields, buildings, roads and other cultural features from orbital altitudes," according to a 1965 report of the National Academy of Sciences.

Spacecraft sensors could permit continuous monitoring of changes in land and ice formations, enabling scientists to control beach and river erosion and harbor siltation.

The list of potential benefits staggers the imagination. Scientists say it should be possible to improve the yields of cereal crops by determining the state of soil moisture and incidence of plant disease at critical times in the growing season.

They could provide a warning system for potential disasters such as landslides, avalanches, forest fires, tidal waves, or earthquakes, saving lives through advance alerts.

DOMESTIC

March, 1867
The bill for the admission of Colorado was defeated in the Senate March 1.

The rebel regulators of Kentucky, who lately ordered General Speed S. Fry from the State, served a warning on Governor Bramlette on February 27, threatening him with violence if he issues any more proclamations against their lawless proceedings, and ordering him and other prominent Union men of Frankfort to leave the State.

United States Commissioner Foster arrested five magistrates of Norfolk, Virginia, on February 27, for refusing to accept colored testimony in legal proceedings.

The President sent no Message to the Fortieth Congress, as has been customary on the assembling of a new Congress.

The Senate, on March 9, passed a joint resolution appropriating $1,000,000 for the relief of the Southern people, loyal and disloyal alike.

A caucus of the Republican Members of Congress was held at Washington on March 6. The majority were clearly in favor of the impeachment of the president.

Robert Lincoln, the eldest son of the late President Lincoln, has been admitted to the bar of Illinois.

If meat is high in New York, it is cheap enough in some places. Prairie chickens have been selling as low as five cents apiece at Springfield, Missouri. Our citizens would do well to emigrate.

It is stated, that in the year past, we have imported from 15,000 to 20,000 canary-birds into this country, at a cost of from $60,000 to $90,000. They are mostly from the Hartz Mountains, in Hanover, and take passage to America in German steamers.

HUMORS of the day

March, 1867
An amusing story is told of a cunning exhibitor at an agricultural fair in Connecticut, who divided a bushel of fine peaches, and entered one-half in his own name for competition, and the other in the name of an influential man in a neighboring town. The big man got the prize, and the other contribution, although off the same tree, was not mentioned.

A COMMENT — "Speech is silver, silence is gold." Hence the expression, hush money. Why is an unsuccessful oil-borer like an advertised wife? Because he has left his bed and bored for parts unknown.

There is an old proverb that says that contentment is the true philosopher's stone. Brown says it's very likely, for nobody has ever found one or the other.

—Harper's Weekly

FOREIGN

March, 1867
The English have as much difficulty in procuring good servants as Americans, if the following advertisement, which appeared in the Birmingham Post gives us the liberty of making a "Yankee guess."

WANTED — A general servant in a small family. The housework and cooking all done by the members of the family. The gentleman of the house rises early, but prepares breakfast for himself. All the washing is put out, and the kitchen is provided with every comfort and luxury. Cold meat and hash studiously avoided. Wages no object to a competent party. ## 74% Income Parity, Ever Rising Costs Fret Farm Bureaus

CHICAGO — Concern over the worsening cost-price squeeze on farmers was expressed here today by the board of directors of the American Farm Bureau Federation in its regular quarterly session in the Pick-Congress Hotel.

The 27-member board, which represents 1,703,908 member families who account for about 70 percent of the food commodities moving to market, said that steadily declining farm prices and rising production costs have created an extremely serious situation in the farm economy with far-reaching implications to consumers.

The board issued the following statement:

"Farm prices have declined 7.4 percent since mid-August 1966 and the drop of 1 percent during the month ending February 15, was the sixth consecutive monthly price decline reported by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"February farm production costs showed a decline of one-third of one percent from the record high in January, but were still three percent over a year ago.

"Thus the parity ratio which reflects the relationship between the prices received by farmers and the cost of things they buy for production dropped to 74 percent as compared with 82 percent in mid-February a year ago.

"Skyrocketing Expenses" — "Farmers are naturally concerned over the steady deterioration in farm prices, but are even more dismayed over skyrocketing production expenses which they attribute to increasing labor costs stimulated by fiscal recklessness on the part of the Administration.

"At the recent farm policy conference in Washington, President Johnson acknowledged that 'farmers are caught in a bind' between higher production costs and 'stable or lowering prices for their farm commodities.' However, he gave no indication that the Administration planned a change in its flatiron 'guns and butter' policy.

"Blamed for Food Costs — "Farmers also recall that it was just about a year ago that the Administration tried to make farmers the whipping boy for inflation generated by its own spending policies. At that time, President Johnson also advised housewives to sharpen their pencils and not buy high-priced items. The Administration sought to curb farm prices through a series of executive actions including the dumping of government surplus stocks on the market, cutbacks in certain food purchased for the armed forces, and imposition of quotas on hide exports.

"It is now apparent that the Administration has been successful in holding down farm prices, but it is equally clear that price declines at the farm have not been reflected to any great extent in consumer prices."

BEREA LASSIES ELECT OFFICERS

The Berea Lassies 4-H club met March 15 and organized for the coming year, electing the following officers: president, Georgia Ann Hibbs; vice-president, Ruth Ann Johnson; secretary - treasurer, Kathy Reiser; reporter, Cindy Martin; health and safety, Diane Farmer; music and recreation, Nancy Jarvis.

Federation delegates and Junior Leaders are Georgia Ann Hibbs and Ruth Ann Johnson.

Projects were discussed and chosen.

The next meeting will be April 5.

Illinois Farm OUTLOOK

SURPLUSES OR SCARCITY?

Popular ideas, like March winds, often change very quickly.

For example, take the subjects of farm surpluses, population growth, and world hunger. Just a few years ago, prominent agricultural experts cited one another's publications to prove that U.S. farmers could produce far more than could be used to good advantage for many years. They advocated the tightening of government controls over the production and the marketing of food and other farm products.

In more recent years, the reigning experts have been telling and repeating accounts of a world population explosion, a billion malnourished human beings now, and starvation for many millions in the coming years. There is, or was until recently, growing support for the idea that markets for U.S. farm products are now unlimited—at least in relation to what farmers can produce.

Forecast Way Off — The population experts, or some of them, may be wrong now, just as they were in times past. For instance, back around 1930 a leading expert from Washington developed and displayed charts showing that U.S. population would reach about 150 million around 1960, then level-off. But by 1960 we had 181 million. Before this year ends, we will have about 200 million.

At about the same time, a population expert in England forecast a declining population for that country. This authority foretold a shrinkage of the English population to about one-fifth of the 1930 level by the year 2035. But the English population has continued to grow, though not so fast as ours.

Some present population specialists, probably aware of these errors of the past, have been questioning the currently popular ideas of continuous human multiplication. One of these questioning specialists is Professor Donald J. Bogue of the University of Chicago.

Zero Growth Rate?

He believes that from 1965 onward, the rate of world population growth will decline with each passing year. He expects the growth rate to fall to zero or near zero by the year 2000.

Dr. Bogue says that it is doubtful that a total, net food shortage for the entire world will ever develop. If such a shortage does develop, it will be mild and only of short duration.

What is to muffle the population explosion? Family planning, says Dr. Bogue. He says that most couples the world over want no more than three children. Governments in many countries, including those of India and China, have made family control an integral part of their plans for economic development.

It may be significant that the rate of population growth in the United States has decreased about one-third since 1955. At that time, our population was increasing 1.8 percent each year. Now it is increasing only 1.1 percent.

"The human race," says Dr. Bogue, "clearly has within its grasp the capacity to chase hunger from the earth—within only 10 to 20 years!"

We conclude that demand for U.S. farm products may not grow so fast as some people have been expecting.

4-H Club Activities

The Peppy Peppers 4-H club met March 11 at the South Jacksonville Village Hall where discussion was held on the Share the Fun skit.

Demonstrations were given by Phyllis Marshall, Patty Crawford, Janet Patterson. Members of the club assisted with the muscular dystrophy drive after the meeting.

The next meeting will be at 2 p.m. April 8.

The Domestic Dandies 4-H group met at the home of Mrs. Dale Mawson recently with Jaleen Mawson serving as presiding officer.

The program was presented by Jaleen Mawson, Betty Fearneyhough, Ann Ahlquist, Eleanor Jones, Kathy Hembrough, Carol Maurer and Patty Maurer.

Refreshments were served by Eleanor Jones and Marcia McNeely.

The next meeting will be held April 8 at the home of Mrs. Robert Headen.

THEY'RE NOT WELL — NEW DELHI (AP)—A student welfare seminar at Delhi university was told 25 per cent of India's college students suffer from some organic or functional disease and that one per cent have tuberculosis.

Salmonella Bacteria: Problem For Food Packers, Health Men

Salmonella, a germ that causes food poisoning, was found in a small sample of a Chunky candy bar two weeks ago, and caused the manufacturer to withdraw 7.5 million bars from the market.

This bacterium was the same type responsible for the withdrawing of an instant milk product from the market several months ago.

A common bacterium found in man and animals, salmonella can be carried in almost anything, including food. Public health officials estimate that it infects about 2 million Americans every year. It causes a type of food poisoning called salmonellosis.

Nausea, headache, vomiting, abdominal cramps, diarrhea and general weakness are symptoms of salmonellosis. However, because it can easily be confused with other stomach disorders, most cases of the disease aren't even reported. For example, in 1965 only 20,965 cases were reported, although this was a tremendous increase over the 1,733 reported in 1951.

"Controlling the disease is very difficult because of our large population and our centralized food distribution system," says Dr. George T. Woods of the University of Illinois College of Veterinary Medicine.

"A Matter Of Hours" — "Food containing salmonella can be distributed all over the country in a matter of hours. When salmonella is found, all the food has to be recalled, as was the case with the candy bars."

Even though the food processing industry makes every effort to eliminate salmonella organisms, processed food can become contaminated at some later stage, Dr. Woods explains.

Food Aid Recipients Must Develop Rural Resources: Bentley

HOLLYWOOD BEACH, Florida—Food-deficit countries dependent on food aid have an urgent need to bring their own food production into balance as quickly as possible, says Dean Orville G. Bentley of the University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

One avenue for reaching such a balance is to increase food production through the combined use of new agricultural technology, more production inputs, and often a break with traditional farming patterns.

In addressing a National Chemical Credit Association meeting, Bentley pointed out that in many food-deficit countries, other sectors of the economy drain away investment capital, foreign exchange, manpower, and other resources needed in agriculture. And economic advisors from other countries have been slow to realize that the failure to develop agriculture retards general economic development, Bentley explained.

A major roadblock to progress toward increased food production in many developing countries is lack of improved production technology suited to the tropics and sub-tropics. Such countries as Mexico and Taiwan, however, have made spectacular gains in food production.

These countries have avoided food problems, have fed their populations better, and have maintained and increased farm exports. Bentley cited their programs of agricultural research and education as contributing to their progress.

But the U. S., in its efforts to improve food production capacity in developing countries, must not expect to export only improved American agricultural practices. Rather, the U. S. must help the agricultural scientists and extension workers in food-deficit countries develop practical methods that their people will accept.

In closing, Bentley cited six recommendations made by Rockefeller Foundation president George Harrar to implement full agricultural production for all countries of the world, including the U. S.:

Adequate Farm Size — "Farmers must have land units of an adequate size for a successful business operation. Unused land and uneconomic absentee landlordism are not consistent with meeting the food requirements for growing populations.

To boost production, farmers must have the benefit of continuing research and prompt application of its results.

Farmers must have at reasonable prices adequate and timely supplies of fertilizers, agricultural chemicals, crop varieties, and improved livestock breeds.

"Efficient use of rainfall, ground water, or impounded water is necessary.

"Farmers must have easily accessible markets, adequate storage facilities and prices that will stimulate improved practices."

"Farmers must have such 'back up' support as a continuing flow of information necessary to their businesses; implements and materials; and social services, schools, and clinics for the family."

There is no mystery about any of the ingredients essential to successful agriculture, Bentley concluded. Any country can achieve higher crop yields and better standards of living if it has the desire and the will to do so.

BRIMFUL and running over

By Jim Brim

To buy or not to buy. This is the question a farmer asks when he contemplates buying new machinery.

Know your costs and estimate expenses if you expect to make profitable money management decisions. You have to keep depreciation records for tax purposes, so, with just a little extra effort, repair costs, operating expenses and hours of use can be recorded for each major machine. Where detailed records aren't possible, spot-check.

When planning for new machinery estimate costs that can be compared with your present methods. Figure depreciation on the actual cash-on-the-market value.

Be conservative in estimating fuel consumption and power output of the new machines. Research shows tractors are used an average of slightly over one-half of their maximum power. So, average fuel use is less than most realize.

Remember also that larger machines aren't as efficient as smaller ones. A machine double in size will do some less than double the work.

Labor saved is of value only if it replaces help or allows a bigger operation.

Include interest and insurance even if you pay cash and don't insure. Taxes and shelter costs must be figured.

A good basic farm record-keeping system comes first, then develop extra information for machinery management.

A new machine may look nice and handle well but you need to know costs to stay ahead.

Now you should . . .

Farmers Should Order Wildlife, Tree Stock For Spring Planting

"An animal's home must provide water, food, and cover," says the soil conservationist for Morgan County.

Cover for wildlife includes places to play, nest and rear young, and escape from the weather and predators.

Food includes corn, beans, small grain, weed seeds and other plants, animal and insect life. Life-giving water comes from dew and surface water.

Moreover, these basic needs must be of the right kind, sufficiently abundant and accessible to care for the animals' needs throughout the year.

Landowners and operators can improve these wildlife "homes" with proper management of the land, says Joe Graham, of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service. Agricultural crops, good land management and wildlife abundance cannot be separated. Gamebirds and animals and songbirds also prefer our most abundant crops — corn and beans.

Privately owned agriculture land will always be important in the production of an annual farm game crop. The landowner deserves the "pat-on-the-back" for it is his decision to control practices on his land that benefit wildlife.

What are some wildlife enhancement practices? Fence rows, both grass and shrubbery, field borders and ditch banks are called "edges." Wildlife prefer "edges," Graham said. These edges create "fingers" in croplands that are beneficial to wildlife by providing cover near food.

When cornstalks are left on the land over winter, food and cover are provided during a critical period. Fall plowing in by March 31, 1967.

Wildlife packets are available through the State Department of Conservation, Division of Forestry. The Northern packet should be ordered, consisting of 100 White Pine, 100 Red Pine, 100 Silky Dogwood, 100 Bush Honeysuckle, and 100 Autumn Olive.

Directors of the Morgan County Soil and Water Conservation District will pool orders for planting stock against this year. Contact your Soil and Water Conservation District office at 15 Permac Road. Phone 245-7320 for details.

Requests for trees should be in by March 31, 1967.

Here's what happens when V-C Nitro King goes down before planting time!

By September your corn can look like this. You get the kind of full, healthy ears that make extra bushels on every acre. The kind of yield you get when your crop gets all the nitrogen it needs throughout the growing season.

V-C Nitro King is the most concentrated form of nitrogen you can use at the lowest cost per pound. That's because V-C Nitro King is 82% nitrogen. It's Mobil's special V-C brand of anhydrous ammonia.

So don't you think this is the year to start using V-C Nitro King on your farm? You'll be glad you did when you see your corn in September.

HOW MUCH IS A BILLION?

Discussions of deficits in the national budget running into the billions has led one observer to say, "We speak casually of 8 or 10 or 12 billion dollars but do you really know what a billion dollars represent?" He answers the question by saying, "If you threw away a thousand dollars a day every day for seven days a week in a year you would have thrown away $365,000. In three years you would have disposed of a little over a million dollars. One billion is a thousand million. So at the rate of $1,000 a day it would require almost three thousand years to get rid of a billion. You would have had to start a thousand years before the birth of Christ to get the job done."

CHAMPAIGN TOURNAMENT ITEMS

CHAMPAIGN (Special Report) — Rumors here Friday have it that former Jacksonville native Charley Due will be the head basketball coach at the new Champaign high school scheduled to open athletic competition next season.

THE DIFFERENCE in northern and southern Illinois officiating was quite obvious to fans watching the two afternoon quarterfinals. In the first game, two southern officials called everything in sight and, needless to say, York, from the north, seemingly got the worst end of it. In the Springfield-Champaign contest, two Chicago area officials let them play and the fans enjoyed it much more.

MORE THAN A FEW of the 16,000 fans watching the Springfield-Champaign game could not understand why Springfield fans sounded like they were "booming" star forward Mark Stoddard each time he touched the ball. Evidently few of them realized that Stoddard acquired the nickname of "Moose" and the "M-O-O-S-E" call is Springfield fans' way of applauding him.

SPRINGFIELD'S all-state center Dave Robisch picked up the name of "Rubbish" this season because of the many layups he hit. However, in last Tuesday's super sectional at Macomb and Friday's game here, Robisch showed that he could hit from out as well as handle good big men in a defensive game.

TRAFFIC management was evidently at a low ebb Friday. At least a couple of thousand fans who arrived late couldn't understand why several hundred cars were lined up for as much as a mile and a half at a standstill, while several hundred parking spaces remained empty around the assembly hall.

QUINCY HIGH Coach Sherrill Hanks was quoted in a Champaign newspaper Friday as saying he wasn't sure Ron Clay's last-second bucket that beat Jacksonville should have really counted.

HANKS SAID, "Clay actually was trying to pass the ball to our center Billy Gay, but threw it too high. He must have been five or six feet behind the 10-second line when he let fly. The ball hit the backboard and went right in. The gun went off with the ball in the air. The question is, was the basket legal?"

WHY WOULDN'T IT Be? Sherrill explained, "the rule book says an attempted shot is good if it's in the air when time expires. But this wasn't an attempted shot... it was an attempted pass!"

Clay Claims Three More Title Fights Scheduled

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay said Friday he heard he'll be able to fight at least four more months and that he expects to meet Argentina's Oscar Bonavena in Tokyo May 27.

Clay said he probably will have three more fights after his title defense with Zora Folley at Madison Square Garden next Wednesday night and that all of them may be out of the country. The champion's attorneys are seeking an injunction to prevent Clay's induction into the Army on April 11.

After he had boxed four rounds with sparmate James Ellis in the basement of the Garden, Clay told newsmen in his dressing room, "I was thinking it. Folley would be my last one-but I found out today I may have three more including the one in Tokyo. They might all be out of the country."

Asked when and from whom he had received the information, Clay replied "I heard it last night."

Senators Nip Locals; Pekin Moves By York

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Pekin and Springfield, a pair of hard-hitting, well-coached teams, Friday smashed their way into the semifinals of the Illinois State High School basketball tournament.

Pekin overpowered York of Elmhurst 94-70 with a strong finish and Springfield knocked Champaign out of the running 64-61.

Springfield, led all season by Dave Robisch, a 6-foot-9 pivot man who has a stronger hankering for baseball than basketball, also came up with some fine shooting by Mike Stoddard, 5-11½, to subdue the Maroons.

Robisch didn't surprise anyone as he pushed in 25 points with his left handed shots and Stoddard added 23 to get the Senators past the scrappy Maroons.

Out Of Reach Although Champaign's only lead came at 12-10 in the first quarter, the Maroons kept up the hopes of their followers until Robisch came up with two free throws with 48 seconds to play, making the score 64-57 and putting it beyond Champaign's reach.

After Champaign has taken its only lead, Springfield battled back and the two teams were tied 15-15 at the quarter. Stoddard then scored five points to push the Senators ahead to stay 20-17.

It was 31-24 at the half and 44-36 after three quarters with Robisch and Stoddard scoring all Springfield's points in the period.

Halts Runaway It then appeared as if Springfield would do the same thing Pekin had done in the opener and power to a one-sided triumph but Larry Jackson of Champaign had other ideas.

Jackson score 26 points for Champaign with 14 of them coming in the final quarter as the Maroons kept within striking distance. In the closing minutes, however, Don Bryan, who had scored a previous field goal, came up with a pair of sneak baskets to keep the Senators from collapsing under Jackson's long one-handers.

The opener had the makings of a close game and, despite the final score, actually was until the powerful Chinks blew it wide open in the fourth and final quarter with a 28-point spurt.

Pekin never trailed in the game but found York a tenacious foe which kept bouncing back every time the Chinks threatened to put it beyond reach in the first three quarters. The Chinks got off to a fast start and led 23-14 late in the first quarter before York put in its first comeback and pulled within one point at 38-37 with 1:48 left in the half.

Up By 11 Pekin pulled ahead 47-41 at the half and then spurred to a 59-48 on the shooting of Fred

Redlegs' Rookie Highlights Spring Training Action

By The Associated Press
Rookie first baseman Lee May collected three hits, including a game-winning two-run home run in the ninth inning that enabled Cincinnati to defeat Boston 7-5 in a highlight of Friday's exhibition baseball action.

May's ninth-inning blast with Floyd Robinson on base broke a 5-5 tie and gave the victory to 18-year-old Gary Nolan, an Irish youngster pitching on St. Patrick's Day.

Catcher John Romano was also among the day's batting stars. He had a triple, a single and three runs batted in while leading St. Louis to a 10-5 triumph over Pittsburgh.

In other games, San Francisco downed California 7-2, Philadelphia beat Houston 5-2, Detroit defeated the Chicago White Sox 7-3, Washington edged Atlanta 3-2 and the Chicago Cubs trounced Cleveland 9-3.

Gaylord Perry and Jim Ray Hart starred for the Giants. Perry allowed only three hits in five scoreless innings while Hart had a home run, a double and four RBI.

Johnny Callison and Johnny Briggs each walloped two-run homers for the Phillies while Jim Northrup and Ray Oyler homered for Detroit against the White Sox.

Washington broke a 2-2 tie with a single run in the sixth against the Braves. Frank Howard scored the lead run on a slow grounder to short.

The Cubs won their sixth straight game, but lost the services for at least a week of star third baseman Ron Santo, spiked on the left kneecap.

In night games, the New York Mets played Baltimore, the New York Yankees faced Los Angeles while the Minnesota Twins took on Kansas City in Caracas, Venezuela.

Miller and Dave Martin. York came back again to cut the lead to 63-58 and trailed only 66-60 going into the final quarter.

However, foul trouble which plagued the Dukes from the very start took its toll in the fourth quarter. Chris Schweer, York's 6-foot-6 pivot man, fouled out in the fourth quarter and Pekin then rumbled to its 24-point victory.

Schweer actually became just another player in the first quarter when he drew three fouls and shied away from the action. He was virtually useless after drawing No. 4 early in the second quarter but still managed to score 16 points.

Miller led everyone with 30 points and Barry Moran chipped in with 23 as the Chinks got four men in double figures.

Jeff Dawson, a 5-foot-9 sophomore who didn't start and the brother of Illinois varsity star Jim Dawson, paced the Dukes with 22 points.

'Robisch Tore Us Up' — Champaign Coach

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — "That big guy just tears you defense apart."

So said Coach Lee Cabutti after Dave Robisch, 6-foot-9 Springfield center, led the Senators to a 64-61 quarterfinal victory over Champaign in the Illinois High School Basketball Tournament Friday.

It marked the third meeting of the campaign between the Big Twelve rivals and the third defeat at the hands of Springfield.

"They're a funny team," Cabutti said. "They've improved tremendously during the season."

Wishes SHS Luck Cabutti, gracious in defeat, shouted across the locker room to Coach Verdie Altizer of Springfield.

"Good luck, Verdie, I hope you win."

Cabutti declined to predict the outcome of the Pekin-Springfield semifinal game Saturday but did indicate it would be a good match.

"Over-all, Pekin has a better ball club. But Springfield has the 6-9 guy. I'm not going to go against Springfield, although Dawdie Hawkins Pekin's coach has a fine club."

Altizer said he was happy Champaign decided against a slow-down game.

"What's just what we wanted," Altizer said. "We were

Winston Salem Cops NCAA College Title

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — game sealed the final score. Kentucky Wesleyan, ranked No. 2, went ahead to stay 12-10 hitting 40 points, the unranked Winston Salem Rams won the NCAA College Division basketball championship Friday night by defeating Southwest Missouri State 77-74.

Third place went to Kentucky Wesleyan, last year's champion, with a 112-73 victory over Illinois State.

The Rams, taking the crown in their first try, ended their season with a 31-1 record, with little All-America Monroe's 40 points boosting his season total to 1,329.

It expanded his national college scoring record which he set two days ago and surpassed the 1,255 points set by Bevo Francis of Rio Grande in 1954.

Winston Salem never trailed in the first half and managed a 37-34 margin at intermission after hitting 515 from the floor, with Monroe banging in 19 points.

The ninth-ranked Southwest Bears, bowing out with a 23-5 mark, tied the score at 37-37 on a shot by Lou Shepherd, only to have Monroe and Bill English lead a spurt that put the Rams ahead 47-39 within 90 seconds.

But with 9:40 to play, Jim Gumbersbach made a fast-break basket to send the Bears ahead for the first time in the game 56-55.

The Bears, quarter-finalists in 1958 and runners-up in 1959, held the lead until Monroe's side shot at 3:21 tied it 73-73.

Shepherd's free throw put the Bears ahead again. Then Gene Smiley made two free throws for the Rams who went on top 75-74 to stay. Monroe's two charity tosses at the end of the

Winston Salem never trailed in the first half and managed a 37-34 margin at intermission after hitting 515 from the floor, with Monroe banging in 19 points.

The ninth-ranked Southwest Bears, bowing out with a 23-5 mark, tied the score at 37-37 on a shot by Lou Shepherd, only to have Monroe and Bill English lead a spurt that put the Rams ahead 47-39 within 90 seconds.

But with 9:40 to play, Jim Gumbersbach made a fast-break basket to send the Bears ahead for the first time in the game 56-55.

The Bears, quarter-finalists in 1958 and runners-up in 1959, held the lead until Monroe's side shot at 3:21 tied it 73-73.

Shepherd's free throw put the Bears ahead again. Then Gene Smiley made two free throws for the Rams who went on top 75-74 to stay. Monroe's two charity tosses at the end of the game sealed the final score. Kentucky Wesleyan, ranked No. 2, went ahead to stay 12-10 hitting 40 points, the unranked Winston Salem Rams won the NCAA College Division basketball championship Friday night by defeating Southwest Missouri State 77-74.

Third place went to Kentucky Wesleyan, last year's champion, with a 112-73 victory over Illinois State.

Terriers Pull Ouster; Rockford Wins Easily

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Carbondale's tall, tenacious Terriers turned in their second straight upset in the Illinois State High School Basketball Tournament with a 53-47 victory over favored Collinsville Friday night.

Carbondale was the only team to stage a comeback victory in the quarter-finals.

Undefeated Rockford West blew past Homewood-Flossmoor 79-60.

Down At Half Carbondale's victory was totally unexpected as Collinsville went ahead by 10 points in the first half and held an eight-point margin in the second half.

The Kahoks led 28-20 going into the third quarter when Carbondale started cutting down the margin. Even at that, Collinsville appeared to be in command at the start of the final period with a 42-36 lead.

Then a 6-foot-5, 220-pound senior with the unlikely name of Peaches Laster took charge for the Terriers. While Collinsville was able to score only five points in the final period, Peaches and his teammates pushed through 17 for the triumph.

Bill Perkins, 6-foot-9 pivot man, scored to open the fourth quarter for Carbondale and L.C. Brasfield pulled the Terriers within two points with a rebound.

Paul Jackstadt scored for Collinsville but Laster tied it with two quick baskets. Jackstadt then put Collinsville ahead for the last time, 46-44, before Laster tied it and Perkins gave Carbondale its go-ahead goal.

Three free throws by Terry Wallace and two more by Ken Lewis clinched it for the Terriers.

Laster led Carbondale with 15 points and Perkin collected 12. Dennis Arnold was high for Collinsville with 17.

The first game of Friday night's session was virtually a no-contest affair.

Homewood held a few early leads but Rockford West, seeking to become the sixth undefeated champion, battled to an 18-16 first quarter edge.

A pair of free throws by Sophomore Mark Sibley opened the second quarter and gave West a 19-16 lead. Homewood twice crept within a point before the Warriors put on the speed and grabbed a 38-28 halftime lead.

Bill Kroc's 20-foot jumper cut the margin at the start of the third quarter but with Sibley, Cal Glover and Jim Sallis all scoring, West hit 10 straight points and took a 48-30 lead to put the issue beyond doubt.

Homewood never recovered and bowed out of the running with a 26-4 record.

Glover topped all scorers with 21 points while Sibley scored 18 and Sallis, after a slow start, helped pour it on and finished with 16.

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

By STELLA

SUNDAY, MARCH 19—Born today, you are a born optimist, kindly and sympathetic and filled with good cheer. Seldom does it occur to you that there are circumstances which cannot be made better by the force of will or time—and seldom, therefore, will you accept another's dictum that there is nothing you can do about a given situation. Such optimism makes you a good worker, for you have no fear of ultimate failure; on the other hand, it may also make you an unrealistic worker—one who chases after rainbows.

One of those rare individuals who would do anything for a friend, you must take care that your efforts in this direction are not misdirected. Not all friends are worth the maximum effort you are willing to exert for them, nor are all their projects—and it is up to you to learn how to separate wheat from chaff.

You should be able to make an exceptionally happy marriage with one who, like you, believes in the ultimate justice of things. You would be wise, however, in your search for a mate, to seek someone who also has the practicality that you lack as the other side of his or her character coin.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Monday, March 20

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 21) — Initiative is what counts when it comes to taking advantage of today's opportunities. Don't expect things to be handed to you.

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 20) — A day which, according to the signs, should be eminently successful. Make certain, however, to have the facts down pat.

TAURUS (Apr. 21-May 21) — Fortune smiles on all your activities today—but most particularly on those having to do with finances. Time to make a gain.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21) — Make a wise decision and then carry it out with moderate action and you should have success in your pocket by eve.

CANCER (June 22-July 23) — Plans for social activities should work out as you expect. On-the-job matters may require a willingness to make changes, however.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23) — A family get-together should be most important to you today. Give employment matters only as much attention as they demand.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) — A highly productive day for the Virgo who takes advantage of the closeness of others. Don't sell your talents short.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) — Individuality of approach should see you farther along the road to success than any other tack you could take now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Turn a vague idea into a feasible plan for productive activity. Others may get the jump on you if you don't.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) — Improve employment conditions for yourself and others through the wisdom of your questions and answers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20) — A good beginning to a good week—but one that could be spoiled by a degree of self-confidence that robs one of industriousness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 20) — Benefits to the Aquarius who comes up with the right idea at the right time. You can well afford to be progressive today.

TWO BREAK-INS, THEFT REPORTED

City police Friday investigated two break-ins which occurred in downtown Jacksonville during the night.

The back door at the Tune Shop, 223 East State Street, was pried open to gain entrance to the store. Store officials are conducting an inventory to determine what is missing.

At the Morgan County Service Company, 307 East Court street, a panel was knocked out of the front door to enter the building. Apparently nothing was missing, according to a preliminary survey.

And an unusual theft occurred last night. A walnut log, nine feet long and eighteen inches in diameter, was stolen from a pile of logs along the Norfolk and Western tracks between North West and Church Streets.

WINCHESTER MAN SENTENCED FRIDAY TO STATE FARM

Harold H. Angelo, 45, of Winchester was sentenced to serve eleven months at Vandalia state penal farm by Magistrate Paul Fenstermaker Friday afternoon.

Angelo entered a plea of guilty a week earlier and asked probation on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor.

Magistrate Fenstermaker denied his motion for probation prior to sentencing.

Vandalism Or Fate?

"We are in no position to make any reckless charges at the moment but both the power department and the city police are investigating the possibility of vandalism at several city sub-station locations," Robert Jameson, Jacksonville utilities superintendent, said Friday afternoon.

City officials have been concerned for the past six weeks with power failures of short duration caused by situations which seem "strange or unusual."

Jameson recounted evidence of rocks lodged in the cooling coils of the large transformers, soft drink bottles inside the substations and other evidence of insulators being shot out with a rifle. Jameson said Thursday evening about 7:30 a line crew found a broken insulator at the substation behind the Gold Coast Trailer Park. At 1:30 a.m. Friday, a second insulator at the same location was broken after having been checked earlier in the evening.

Operators at the power plant heard what they described as a gun being fired behind the plant for the past two nights. Upon investigation, the operators found nothing.

Jameson said he is quite concerned about the safety of persons who may be near the substations. He said when insulators at the end bells go out it causes quite a lot of fireworks. The insulators are 60-feet in the air and appear about the same size as Japanese lanterns.

"Most children," Jameson said, "would have difficulty hitting insulators with rocks in the locations investigated since the wires are about 60-feet in the air."

Anyone who may have information concerning vandalism of city-owned power facilities is asked to contact Suplt. Robert Jameson or Police Chief Charles Runkel.

One Injured Late Friday Evening

A Murrayville woman was admitted to Holy Cross hospital late Friday night for treatment of injuries sustained in a one-vehicle accident south of the city on U.S. 67.

The woman was identified as Mrs. Phyllis Rawlings, 37, of Murrayville.

She reportedly sustained lacerations, and was admitted for observation.

State police said that Mrs. Rawlings was driving alone at the time in the northbound lane of traffic, when an unidentified car pulled onto the highway from the Skating Rink Road.

Officers said that Mrs. Rawlings swerved to avoid striking the second vehicle, and her car struck a tree at the east edge of the highway.

The time of the incident was listed at 10:11 p.m.

Liquor Store Closed 30 Days

Mayor Byron Holkenbrink, acting in his official capacity as liquor commissioner, ordered the Jacksonville Duncan Liquors license, 214 North Main, suspended for 30 days.

Holkenbrink said the action would be effective at 12:01 a.m. Sunday, March 19, until 12:01 a.m., Tuesday, April 18.

The move effects the Class C license held by Jacksonville Duncan Liquors, Inc., J. G. Kelly, licensee.

Holkenbrink said he based his decision on information learned at a liquor commission hearing March 13, at which time an 18-year old youth admitted purchasing liquor at that establishment.

BEARDSTOWN MAN SENTENCED FRIDAY

A 20-year-old Beardstown man was sentenced to serve four months at Vandalia state penal farm by Magistrate Paul Fenstermaker Friday morning after the defendant's motion for probation had been denied.

Stephen Hankins, 20, of Beardstown entered a plea of guilty to driving while his license was revoked a week ago and asked the court for probation.

Hankins is reportedly also wanted in Beardstown for failure to make a scheduled court appearance.

Sheriff Dean Colwell said he would check with Cass county authorities to see if Hankins would be returned to face charges in his home county before delivering him to Vandalia.

FREE ADMISSION TO SPORTING EVENTS

HAVANA, Cuba, (AP) — The Cuban government announced Friday that admission to all national sports events will be free.

The National Institute of Sports also said there will be no admission charge for international events in Cuba "with the exception of those provided for by international sports organizations competing in Cuba."

Woody Allen Knows Himself

Woody Allen

By JOAN CROSBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Woody Allen was eating soup when he didn't really want but couldn't refuse because the waiter kept telling him how good it was.

Woody had arrived a bit late because he had been at his analysts', and "every minute is so expensive" he wanted to use all he was allowed.

The slight redhead adjusted his glasses and spoke calmly. He seemed much more relaxed than he used to be and overflowing with plans and security.

"Am I more secure? I don't think about it. Everyone says I'm calmer, but I don't feel calm. I don't see any change in my personality or metabolism. Has marriage helped me? I can't imagine it would make me calmer."

Whatever it is, calm, serene, soft-spoken Woody is in the midst of a success maelstrom that could send a contemplative monk into a tizzy. His first Broadway play, "Don't Drink the Water," is a success. He has a role in the forthcoming James Bond movie, "Casino Royale." He changed a Japanese spy movie into a comedy by writing dubbed-in dialogue. It's now called "What's Up, Tiger Lily?"

He is working on his second Broadway play, which he will star in and he is making plans for another movie he has written ("What's New, Pussycat?") his first, was a top money-maker.

This leaves very little time. But, in the time left him by his analyst and schedule, he plans to make several television appearances on the Ed Sullivan Show, on I've Got A Secret, on Perry Como's March 21 special and, for a week beginning March 20, on Tonight, as substitute for vacationing Johnny Carson.

Woody is looking for new fields to conquer, and plans to try his hand at directing. "I get offers to direct in the theater. David Merrick has asked me how interested I am, and I could direct my own play. But don't want to."

The theater doesn't excite Woody half so much as films.

CLAY HURTING BOOKIES

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay is such a heavy favorite these days that bookmakers here aren't getting much business on his fights.

One bookie lists Clay a 1-4 favorite in his bout with Zora Folley March 22 in New York. Folley is rated a 4-1 underdog.

do. "With movies you can just drop in. There's no big deal. I for one do not appreciate seeing movies at home screenings, which is big with the stars in Hollywood. They call in the 'Bolt-Air Circuit.' Half the fun of seeing 'Casino Royale,' when I get to see it, will be going to the theater on a Saturday night with my wife and sitting in the balcony."

He has little interest in directing for the theatre, but "I'm nuts to direct films. I'm wild over movies. As a child I went to movies as much as seven times a week. The mothers in the neighborhood wouldn't let their sons play with me because all I did was drag them to the movies."

Multitalented, 31-year-old Woody, who married actress Louise Lasser on Groundhog Day in 1986 "for sentimental reasons," doesn't really have any trouble identifying himself to himself.

"I call myself a writer-comedian," he said, giving the two words equal stress. "Soon I'll be a writer-comedian-director. I would hate to have to give any of them up. I would hate never to perform again or never to write again, even if it meant it was because I was so successful in one I couldn't do the other."

The opening bid of four is even more pre-emptive than the bid of three. It also should be a substantially better hand. This is because, somehow or other, three-level pre-empts are seldom doubled while four level pre-empts frequently are.

Thus when we open with a four bid we don't have 10 tricks in our own hand but we do have a hand that is almost surely going to make eight tricks by itself and that has some compensating values.

In first or second seat we would open four spades, irrespective of vulnerability with: Spades—A K Q 10 8 7 6, H—2, D—Q J 10 2, C—2. We would not open four spades with: Spades—A K Q J 10 9 8, H—3 2, D—7 6, C—4 4.

The first hand is likely to make four spades if partner can give us one trick. The latter won't make four spades unless partner can give us three.

We have another rule for four-level pre-empts. We never have more than one ace and, if our partner has passed, we do not ever have solid trumps and a void suit.

Today's hand shows the advantage of this hard and fast rule. South had a normal four-spade opening. North looked over his big hand and decided that South might well hold two aces. Therefore, North bid four no-trump. When South bid five diamonds to show one ace, North signed off at five spades.
